The proper storage of raw and prepared food items and cleanliness are two major items on their checklists.

Ohio Vote Fraud Hearings Continue In Special Session

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Joseph P. Kinneary called an unusual Saturday session today to hear more testimony in a suit that seeks to throw out the results of Ohio's presidential election. Only two days before the state's 25 electoral votes will be cast for President-elect Jimmy Carter, the judge gave those alleging widespread fraud an opportunity to present any further evidence they might have. Kinneary refused Thursday to grant a temporary injunction to halt Ohio's participation on Monday in the U.S. Electoral College. But the injunction request was only part of a broader action that asked the court to order a new statewide presidential vote.

In a lengthy decision, Kinneary said the plaintiffs—two members each of the defeated Republican, U.S. Labor and American parties and one private citizen—didn't provide sufficient proof.

But he denied a defense motion to dismiss the larger action, and said last Tuesday's preliminary hearing convinced him that Ohio's election was "not error free."

Defense counsel based its motion for dismissal almost entirely on the contention that the federal court lacked jurisdiction because the plaintiffs had not exhausted their remedies in state courts. Kinneary cited both case and statutory law in finding that the court does have jurisdiction.

Although his Thursday decision permits Secretary of State Ted W. Brown and the 25 Democratic electors to proceed with Monday's electoral balloting, it apparently had left open a door for possible intervention at some point before Congress canvasses the presidential vote Jan. 6.

Brown and the 25 electors pledged to Carter were listed as defendants in the suit. In requesting the injunction, the plaintiffs had sought to enjoin Brown from issuing certificates of election to the Democrats. The judge said Brown was free to proceed.

Gregory S. Lashutka of Columbus, an attorney for the plaintiffs, said investigators for the U.S. Labor Party began seeking new evidence for today's hearing immediately after Thursday's decision.

Their presentation last Tuesday involved random statistical samplings of selected precincts in Cleveland, Columbus, Toledo and Cincinnati where widespread fraud was alleged to have occurred.

Based on their projections, at least 12,000 votes were fraudulently cast, or more than enough to offset Carter's 11,116-vote Ohio victory margin.

Meanwhile, a similar suit filed by the Labor Party in New York was dismissed Friday by a federal judge who ruled the plaintiffs had failed to prove that voting irregularities cited would have changed the election result. Carter won New York by 288,000 votes.

Cabinet To Be Named

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Carter is spending the weekend at home, but he plans to keep interviewing prospective Cabinet appointees by telephone.

Carter returned home Friday night after spending four days in Atlanta and Washington meeting with potential administration officials. He made it clear he planned a working weekend here.

"I'm going to work on selection of a Cabinet," the President-elect said, slinging his garment bag into the trunk of his car at the Albany, Ga., airport.

The President-elect interviewed prospective appointees during two days in Atlanta and Washington this week. He may return to Atlanta on Monday for more meetings.

Carter has said he expects to name his entire Cabinet before Christmas, two weeks from today. Only Secretary of State designate Cyrus R. Vance has been named so far, and the next announcements are anticipated during the coming week.

Carter told a group of senators on Friday that he plans to name one person to head at least two energy agencies in what would be a first move to consolidate federal bureaus dealing with energy problems.

The Washington Post said in today's editions that James R. Schlesinger, fired by President Ford as defense secretary last year, is a top contender for the energy post.

But today's edition of the New York Times said Schlesinger is still in the running for secretary of defense.

Carter, according to aides, has done much of his talent searching by himself on the telephone. Press spokesman Rex Granum said the President-elect planned to spend today talking to people on his own list for Cabinet posts and with other people who know them.

Carter's visit to Washington ended Friday with a series of Pentagon briefings that touched on, among other things, "the responsibility I will have in the initiation of atomic use if it ever becomes necessary," he said.

His remarks on the Pentagon steps after the meetings were nearly drowned out by several demonstrators chanting, "disarm now."

After briefings in the National Military Command Center, known to outsiders as the "war room," Carter held to his campaign statement that $5 billion to $7 billion could be cut from the defense budget.

"I have no way to know what President Ford's budget requests will be, but I believe that through better organization and efficiencies that can be implemented that amount of savings is possible," Carter said.

While Carter's immediate problem is naming the Cabinet members and other top advisers who will help him run the government, he also is focusing on the economy, one of the first problems that will confront him when he becomes president on Jan. 20.

He met with most of the Democratic members of the House and Senate while staying at Blair House, the government guest quarters across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.

He talked about the economy and promised that members of Congress would have access to him, participants in the meetings reported.

Summing up the congressional visits, Carter said his first priority in dealing with economic problems would be unemployment.

Carter repeated that he has not made a final decision about the need for a tax cut. That decision, he said, will depend on the amount of economic stimulation required when the new administration takes office and how much stimulation can be provided by jobs programs.

He said jobs under the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act and public works projects were the areas in which "I'd like to move as rapidly as I can."

Carter said the amount of economic stimulation required could range from $10 billion to $15 billion or higher. A group of business leaders presented him with one proposal to spend $5 billion on job-creating programs and cut taxes by $15 billion.

India-Russia Relations Cooling

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's Congress party and the pro-Moscow Communists are openly attacking each other for the first time since they became political allies seven years ago.

The development could strain India's traditionally warm ties with the Soviet Union, although the two countries are still close friends.

The political sparring is also significant because it marks the first resurgence of public political controversy since Mrs. Gandhi proclaimed a national emergency last year and effectively suspended normal political life in India.

At the center of the storm is Mrs. Gandhi's 30-year-old son, Sanjay, who emerged as a youth leader in the Congress party this year with frequent attacks on the Communists, whom he says have "no program and do no work" for the poor.

He has also questioned the Communists' loyalty to India, reminding audiences that the pro-Moscow party, one of two Communist parties here, failed to support the anti-British "quit India" movement launched by Mohandas K. Gandhi in 1942.

To the consternation of the Communists, Sanjay has drawn to his side many right-of-center members of the Congress party who favor greater incentives to private business and less emphasis on socialist programs.

In an attack aimed at Sanjay and his followers, Communist leader C. Rajeswara Rao wrote in his party's newspaper that the "main danger" to the country is coming from "the reactionary caucus" inside the Congress.

The Congress responded to Rao's charges this week. Party officers and lawmakers issued strong statements that were reported extensively by the government radio network and by the national news agency.

Five Congress members of parliament said the Communist party itself is "nothing more than a totalitarian and reactionary caucus."

The Communists became the Congress' allies in 1969 when the ruling party split and Mrs. Gandhi lost her parliamentary majority. But she remained in power with the support of independent parliamentarians and Communists.

Since the 1971 elections, however, she has had a two-thirds majority of her own in parliament and no longer needs the Communists' votes.

Sanjay has indicated the Congress party won't enter into any special arrangement in future elections. In the last election, the Congress and Communists refrained from running candidates against each other in some districts.

The Communist Party is the only major non-Congress group whose members have not yet been arrested under Mrs. Gandhi's political crack-down.

Mummy Becomes Fun House Dummy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elmer McCurdy swore he'd never be taken alive so he died with his boots on, shot to death by an Oklahoma sheriff's posse in 1911. He'd be mortified to know that he ended up mummified, as a fun house dummy.

The body tentatively identified as the train robber's was used as a carnival sideshow attraction and as security against a $500 loan. It gathered dust in a wax museum's warehouse and — painted to glow in the dark — hung from a gallows in an amusement park fun house.

The body was found in that undignified position Thursday, when a television crew was filming a segment of "The Six Million Dollar Man" in the fun house at Long Beach, Calif. One of the mummy's arms fell off, and when a technician tried to glue it back on, he discovered the arm bone of a human corpse.

The discovery sparked a search into the mummy's origin, and an autopsy was conducted. During the medical examination an old-style copper-jacketed bullet was extracted from the corpse's stomach.

Identification of the mummy as McCurdy was traced through sales and purchases by carnivals and exhibitors. On Oct. 4, 1911, McCurdy and three of his outlaw gang held up a Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad train near Oksa, in Osage County, Okla.

Bloodhounds and neighbors helped capture one of McCurdy's sidekicks, who led deputy sheriffs to McCurdy's hideout near Big Caney River, where he was killed after a 30-minute gun battle.

The sheriff apparently sold his outlaw prey to a carnival owner, who had the body mummified, according to Dave Friedman, president of Entertainment Ventures, Inc., in Los Angeles. Displaying mummified bodies was a common practice among carnivals in the 1920s and 1930s.

Then, carnival owner Louis Sonney, founder of Friedman's company, obtained McCurdy's body in 1921 as security on a $500 loan that was never repaid, Friedman said.

Sonney used the mummy in his traveling freak show until the World War II years, when such attractions lost their appeal. McCurdy's mummy was retired to a dusty warehouse, where it remained until 1968.

The Hollywood Wax Museum bought the cadaver from Friedman, but never displayed it. The museum sold the mummy to Nu-Pike Amusement Park, where it was painted fluorescent red and hung from a makeshift gallows. There it remained until the discovery on Thursday.

Marine Jet Downs Navy Fighter Plane

CHERRY POINT, N.C. (AP) — Navy and Marine Corps authorities had widely differing accounts of what led to the shooting down of a Navy jet fighter by a Marine F4 Phantom jet firing unarmed, heatseeking missiles.

A Marine Corps spokesman said he didn't know what the Navy A4 Skyhawk was doing in the training area over the Atlantic Ocean.

But an official with Atlantic Fleet headquarters, Norfolk, Va., said the accident occurred during a joint Marine-Navy exercise, and that the Skyhawk was participating in the training.

Since the missile was unarmed, the Navy plane did not explode, but crashed into the ocean Friday as a result of the "projectile going through the aircraft," said Capt. James Pendergast of the Cherry Point Marine Air Station public affairs office.

The pilot of the Skyhawk, Navy Lt. Jerome L. Petykowski, 30, stationed at Virginia Beach, Va., ejected safely and was picked up by a Marine search and rescue helicopter after being in the Atlantic Ocean about an hour, the Marine Corps said. He was taken to the Naval Hospital at Cherry Point, treated for minor injuries and released.

The accident occurred at about 10:30 a.m. during a Marine training exercise in restricted airspace about 40 miles southeast of here, Pendergast said. Pendergast said the Marine plane was firing at an unmanned drone target plane being controlled from the ground by radio.

The missile missed the drone and struck the Skyhawk instead, he said.

Navy officials at Norfolk said that the Skyhawk was towing the target that the missile was intended to hit. Navy Cmdr. John Barry, commander of U.S. Atlantic Fleet headquarters at Norfolk, told reporters the A4 was on a "routine training mission" when it crashed.

Defense Department spokesmen in Washington said Navy and Marine officers were investigating the incident.

Pendergast said the Marine plane was manned by Capt. Chuck Allison, pilot, and 1st Lt. T.E. Helman, radar intercept officer, both from the Beaufort, S.C., Marine Air Station.

Bad Weather Prevalent

By The Associated Press
The freezing rain and drizzle that fell on the middle part of the country Friday — from north Texas into southern Illinois — was triggered by cold air moving quickly behind a cold front.

Travelers' advisories were in effect today for extreme northern Arkansas, parts of Oklahoma, the southern third of Illinois and north Texas. Extremely cold air continued to sag down into the Midwest, sending temperatures below zero from the upper Mississippi Valley into northern Iowa and northwest Illinois.

The cold front also caused rain through the Ohio Valley into northern New York state and through south Texas into the lower Mississippi Valley.

Other precipitation in the nation included snow flurries over the northern Great Lakes and eastern North Dakota, and rain on the northwest Washington coast.

Temperatures around the nation this morning ranged from 75 in Miami to 16 below in Waterloo, Iowa.

Disclosure Statements Needed In '78

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Members of various state boards and agencies will be required to file financial disclosure statements beginning in 1978, the Ohio Ethics Commission has voted.

The delay came with approval of an amendment making the rule effective April 1 instead of the original target date of Jan. 1.

Since state law requires notification by Feb. 15 when any new group is subjected to the disclosure rule, most filings will not be required until 1978, commission executive director Richard G. Terapak explained.

Persons appointed to state boards and commissions after April 1 will be notified within 30 days that they have to file a statement within 90 days, he said.

"Since filings are required on the previous year's financial position, people are on notice that their 1977 finances will have to be reported in 1978," commission chairman Merom Brachman said.

The regulation will affect 640 persons on 67 state boards. College and university representatives opposed the rule when the commission held a public hearing in November.

Commission member Barbara Rawson on Thursday rejected the argument that unpaid board members should not be required to file reports telling sources of income. She said some help award contracts involving millions of dollars.

"Why should these people be treated any different from the 6,000 others required to file?" she asked.

The commission also hired Stephan Stover of Upper Arlington as assistant director at $20,900 a year and James Pickett of Columbus as an investigator at $9,505 annually.

Control Of Soybean Seed Rot Sought

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent
Agriculture

Soybean producers who grow their crop for seed are having an increasing problem with the disease Phomopsis, often called seed rot or pod and stem blight. The fungus disease is most prevalent in eastern states where wet weather is common at harvest time. It can cause germination failure in up to 80 per cent of the crop.

According to D. L. Jeffers, agronomist at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, the search is on for effective control methods. He says healthy soybean plants seem more resistant to Phomopsis and that potassium deficiency will increase the chance of widespread infection. By applying potassium fertilizer, he was able to increase potassium levels in soybean plants and decrease the incidence of the infection. However, even with the fertilizer treatment, germination percentage was still below par.

Combining potassium fertilizer application with other control methods may be the ultimate answer. Jeffers and A. F. Schmitthenner, OARDC plant pathologist, are studying the effects of various fungicides on the disease. They have found high rates of the fungicide benoyl mixed in large volumes of water per acre somewhat effective for reducing the incidence of Phomopsis-infected seed. However, airplane application of legal rates of the fungicide solution had no effect on the infection or germination.

Jeffers believes that since insufficient fungicide coverage of all the plants in a field is the major problem, new application methods using ground equipment with more direct nozzles and high water volume capacities need to be developed. The scientist adds that research on Phomopsis control is continuing with studies on other candidate fungicides as well as techniques to improve the potassium uptake of the soybean plant.

The Ohio work was one of many areas of research reported during the 1976 joint meetings of the American Society of Agronomy, Crop Science Society of America, and the Soil Science Society of America in Houston, Texas. The three groups are scientific, educational organizations with more than 8,500 members throughout the U.S. and more than 90 foreign countries.

been tilled is firmer and thus will better support heavy machines during wet harvest seasons.

But no-tillage is not without problems, warned Triplett. First, the grower must learn the new system and acquire new knowledge and skills. The major problem is selection of proper combinations of herbicides to get season-long weed control. Herbicide systems must be tailored to the weed problems present in order to prevent shifts in weed species.

Planting into untilled soil or soil covered with mulch requires special equipment and development of new skills. Insect and disease pests can become problems in the residue (mulch) which remains on the soil surface.

All of these problems are manageable with present technology, according to Triplett. He cited the success of a pilot pest management program for no-tillage corn production which was initiated in one Ohio county in 1973. Scouts survey fields of subscribing farmers, alerting producers to weed and insect problems and making specific pest control recommendations in time for corrective action. During 4 years, no-tillage corn in the pest-management program averaged more than 50 per cent higher than the county average corn yield each year.

Generally, Triplett said no-tillage corn production works best on well-drained soils. On poorly-drained fields, yields of corn have been lower with no-tillage system. Recently, the Ohio scientists have noted increased incidence of root rot in no-tillage corn on poorly-drained soils. This may be part of the reason for lowered performance. Another problem in northern areas is that soils which are not tilled do not warm up as quickly in the spring. No-tillage corn production may be used to advantage on these soils, if, in a wet spring, it permits more timely planting of the crop.

Turning to the Great Plains, Triplett said that although irrigation has expanded rapidly, available water supplies, increasing cost, and availability of energy will limit further expansion in this direction. He feels that because no-tillage increases efficiency of rainfall utilization, efforts need to be accelerated to fully develop no-tillage for the Great Plains. He said this means more research is needed, new herbicide systems must be developed, planting equipment must be modified, and varieties to best fit conservation practices must be developed.

Triplett said on a national basis, the acreage of no-tillage and minimum tillage systems doubled in the last 4 years. In 1976, he estimated that more than 20 per cent of all U.S. crop acreage was produced by some form of reduced tillage. And he cited a U.S. Department of Agriculture prediction that almost all of the nation's crop of corn will be produced under minimum tillage by the year 2000.

The Ohio scientist was among a number of specialists from across the U.S. to speak to the Corn and Sorghum Research Conference. The conference attracts scientists and industry representatives from throughout the U.S. and is sponsored by the American Seed Trade Association.

4-H

January 15, 1976, marks the 75th Anniversary of 4-H in Ohio. On this date in 1902, A. B. Graham, superintendent of schools in Clark County, met with a group of 81 boys and girls in the courthouse basement. Their purpose was to learn about growing corn, planting a garden, testing soil, tying knots in rope, and identifying weeds and insects.

In 1903, Graham continued his work with the Boys' and Girls' Agricultural Club. They had an exhibit and the boys and girls brought their best ears of corn in five-ear samples, the results of their soil tests, reports and samples of projects and other displays. Prizes were given for first, second and third place and each member was recognized for his or her efforts.

Seeing the success of Graham's out of school education program, Dean Thomas F. Hunt at The Ohio State University set in motion a plan to assist Graham using the resources of the Agricultural Experiment Station and the College of Agriculture to organize additional school and youth clubs throughout Ohio. By 1904, there were 2,000 youth involved in similar agricultural programs in sixteen Ohio counties.

In 1905, A. B. Graham was employed as Superintendent of Extension for Ohio. He immediately set forth the following concepts that form the basis for the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service today:

"To elevate the standard of Living in Ohio;

To emphasize the importance of hard work and habits of industry which are essential to building a strong character;

To acquaint boys and girls with their environment, and to interest them in making their own investigations;

To give the boys who shall become interested in farm work an elementary knowledge of agriculture and farm practices and to give girls the essential facts of domestic economy;

To educate adults in the elementary science of agriculture and in the most up-to-date farm practices;

To cultivate a taste for the beautiful in nature;

To inspire young men and women to further their education in the science of agriculture or domestic science"

As Graham traveled over Ohio, covering over 10,000 miles a year by horse and buggy, slow train or on foot, in winter and summer, through snow, hot sun and rain he was an ambassador for agriculture. His aim was to raise the standard of rural life. He stressed the dignity of hard work and sound character, and he taught that agriculture could be improved by applying the ideas of science.

The Smith-Lever Act of 1914 strengthened the relationship between the College of Agriculture and local communities that supported these youth groups. It provided for the extension of factual information and technical assistance to people not attending colleges through the establishment of the Cooperative Extension Service. Boys' and Girls' Club work was an important part of the program.

Officially, the Ohio 4-H organization began in 1916 when the Department of Boys' and Girls' Club Work was established. The first state 4-H leader was W. H. Palmer, followed by C. C. Lang in 1951, H. W. Harshfield in 1953, Albert F. Gehres in 1962, and Charles W. Lifer in 1970.

In looking at the 4-H program, it is important to note that 4-H didn't happen suddenly, but took shape over many years. And, the beginnings of 4-H are rooted in several places where public spirited people began home project programs for rural youth. These people, like A.B. Graham, worked out their ideas independently and were unaware of others "discovering" similar programs elsewhere.

Minimum Tillage Expands In U.S. Corn Production

Agriculture

Someone has said that "tillage is following the horse as an out-moded element of Great Plains agriculture." And the current trend to various systems of reduced tillage in row crop production indicates that prediction may come true before the end of this century.

An Ohio agronomist, speaking at the 31st annual Corn and Sorghum Research Conference, said that the selection of tillage for corn should be considered as much of a routine management input as the selection of hybrid, planting date, row width, and fertilizer rate.

Dr. Glover B. Triplett, Jr., a researcher at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, Wooster, pointed out that a single definition of minimum tillage is virtually impossible. That's because the term refers to less tillage than is used by the majority of farmers in a particular area. Thus, the definition varies from area to area and probably changes with time as new technologies develop.

Triplett said minimum tillage systems today range from no tillage at all to systems that require a number of trips over the field with different implements before and after planting. The Ohio scientist traced the historical development of minimum tillage systems - most of which have occurred in the past 15 or 20 years.

Plowing before planting offers a number of advantages. But Triplett feels only two benefits associated with tillage are important under a wide range of conditions - weed control and the placement of seed in a manner and under conditions that will insure a satisfactory stand.

The advent of herbicides to control weeds and development of suitable equipment to get the seed planted without tillage paved the way for minimum tillage.

Turning to what he considers the "ultimate" minimum tillage system, Triplett described no-tillage corn production as a spray-plant-harvest system involving complete substitution of chemicals for tillage. Herbicides are the key to no-tillage as well as to systems using intermediate tillage. The Ohio scientist has been working with no-tillage since 1960 and he believes selection of tillage system should be based on its ability to maintain crop productivity at suitable levels while minimizing other corn production problems.

Triplett listed four major advantages of no-tillage corn production. First, time and power for crop establishment are decreased as tillage is reduced. Secondly, no-tillage controls soil erosion losses. This may be the system's most important attribute since it means that corn production can be expanded to rolling terrain where erosion losses previously prohibited row crop production. "The increase in land use potential without unacceptable erosion hazard should provide a welcome increased food reserve for our expanding population," Triplett pointed out.

The third advantage listed by Triplett is that reduced tillage systems provide new opportunities for double-cropping. Fourth, soil which has not

Weather change often puts a strain on house plants. And, the average owner is probably disturbed with some symptoms caused by the recent change to cold weather.

Following are some house plant trouble signs you may be able to correct before the plant dies:

Sudden wilting may occur if plants get too little water, too much water, or too much fertilizer.

Sudden loss of leaves is frequently caused by rapid temperature changes, dry air, cold drafts, exposure to gas or furnace fumes or a change from a sunny to a dark location.

Yellowing and death of lower leaves usually is a sign of nitrogen starvation. It may occur also if plants become pot-bound because of extensive root development. Rubber plants, dracaena, dieffenbachia and other woody plants are especially prone to this trouble. When the lower leaves first start to yellow, apply extra nitrogen.

Yellowing of all leaves may be due to excessive soil moisture or to root rot. If the drainage hole in the pot or planting box is plugged, or if the plants constantly stand in water, the soil will be waterlogged and will lack sufficient oxygen. Destruction of roots by soil borne fungi also causes yellowing of the entire plant. So does severe infestation of mites, aphids and soft bodied scales.

Unnaturally small leaves are most generally the result of insufficient light, especially common when outdoor plants are brought inside.

Brown leaf tips are caused by exposure to hot, dry air, improper watering, objects rubbing against the leaves or insects.

Brown spots on leaves are sometimes caused by direct sunlight burning plants that require shade during late spring and summer.

Cigarette Research Data Given

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's latest laboratory tests of 169 varieties of cigarettes again reflect a tremendous range in which the brand ranked worst Players, contains 64 times the tar and 44 times the nicotine found in the best-rated Carlton 70's.

Federal health authorities have warned for years that the more tar and nicotine a cigarette contains, the more dangerous it is to health — with cancer and heart disease the chief threats. The tobacco industry argues that questions about smoking and health are still unanswered.

Tar and nicotine tests are conducted periodically by the Federal Trade Commission under a mandate from Congress. The results announced today show few substantial changes from previous ratings, though one comparatively new brand, Now, improved its composition to move into a virtual tie with Carlton for lowest tar and nicotine content.

Carlton 70's, an unusually short, filter cigarette not widely sold, was technically the leader with .5 milligrams of tar and .05 mg. of nicotine. Next were the more popular Carlton kingsize cigarettes and Now, both with 1 mg. of tar and .1 mg. of nicotine.

Now, introduced to the market last year, previously was rated at twice these amounts.

True placed next on the new list with 5 mg. of tar and 4 mg. of nicotine. Most of the popular, long-established brands showed little or no change from previous ratings.

Players, at the bottom of the list, is a nonfilter cigarette containing 32 mg. of tar and 2.2 mg. of nicotine.

In 1975, Darke County again led the state in total cash receipts of $94 million from the sale of agricultural commodities, $6 million higher than 1974. The next four highest counties were Mercer, Wayne, Wood and Putnam, according to reports released by the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center.

Control Of Soybean Seed Rot Sought

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent
Agriculture

Soybean producers who grow their crop for seed are having an increasing problem with the disease Phomopsis, often called seed rot or pod and stem blight. The fungus disease is most prevalent in eastern states where wet weather is common at harvest time. It can cause germination failure in up to 80 per cent of the crop.

According to D. L. Jeffers, agronomist at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, the search is on for effective control methods. He says healthy soybean plants seem more resistant to Phomopsis and that potassium deficiency will increase the chance of widespread infection. By applying potassium fertilizer, he was able to increase potassium levels in soybean plants and decrease the incidence of the infection. However, even with the fertilizer treatment, germination percentage was still below par.

Combining potassium fertilizer application with other control methods may be the ultimate answer. Jeffers and A. F. Schmitthenner, OARDC plant pathologist, are studying the effects of various fungicides on the disease. They have found high rates of the fungicide benoyl mixed in large volumes of water per acre somewhat effective for reducing the incidence of Phomopsis-infected seed. However, airplane application of legal rates of the fungicide solution had no effect on the infection or germination.

Jeffers believes that since insufficient fungicide coverage of all the plants in a field is the major problem, new application methods using ground equipment with more direct nozzles and high water volume capacities need to be developed. The scientist adds that research on Phomopsis control is continuing with studies on other candidate fungicides as well as techniques to improve the potassium uptake of the soybean plant.

The Ohio work was one of many areas of research reported during the 1976 joint meetings of the American Society of Agronomy, Crop Science Society of America, and the Soil Science Society of America in Houston, Texas. The three groups are scientific, educational organizations with more than 8,500 members throughout the U.S. and more than 90 foreign countries.

But no-tillage is not without problems, warned Triplett. First, the grower must learn the new system and acquire new knowledge and skills. The major problem is selection of proper combinations of herbicides to get season-long weed control. Herbicide systems must be tailored to the weed problems present in order to prevent shifts in weed species.

Planting into untilled soil or soil covered with mulch requires special equipment and development of new skills. Insect and disease pests can become problems in the residue (mulch) which remains on the soil surface.

All of these problems are manageable with present technology, according to Triplett. He cited the success of a pilot pest management program for no-tillage corn production which was initiated in one Ohio county in 1973. Scouts survey fields of subscribing farmers, alerting producers to weed and insect problems and making specific pest control recommendations in time for corrective action. During 4 years, no-tillage corn in the pest-management program averaged more than 50 per cent higher than the county average corn yield each year.

Generally, Triplett said no-tillage corn production works best on well-drained soils. On poorly-drained fields, yields of corn have been lower with no-tillage system. Recently, the Ohio scientists have noted increased incidence of root rot in no-tillage corn on poorly-drained soils. This may be part of the reason for lowered performance. Another problem in northern areas is that soils which are not tilled do not warm up as quickly in the spring. No-tillage corn production may be used to advantage on these soils, if, in a wet spring, it permits more timely planting of the crop.

Turning to the Great Plains, Triplett said that although irrigation has expanded rapidly, available water supplies, increasing cost, and availability of energy will limit further expansion in this direction. He feels that because no-tillage increases efficiency of rainfall utilization, efforts need to be accelerated to fully develop no-tillage for the Great Plains. He said this means more research is needed, new herbicide systems must be developed, planting equipment must be modified, and varieties to best fit conservation practices must be developed.

Triplett said on a national basis, the acreage of no-tillage and minimum tillage systems doubled in the last 4 years. In 1976, he estimated that more than 20 per cent of all U.S. crop acreage was produced by some form of reduced tillage. And he cited a U.S. Department of Agriculture prediction that almost all of the nation's crop of corn will be produced under minimum tillage by the year 2000.

Find Many Overpayments To Homes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson has urged the Ohio Department of Welfare to step up field auditing of nursing homes after his office released a report that 23 facilities were overpaid $115,636 by the department over 11 months.

The audit was made in a random selection of nursing home cost reports, filed between Jan. 20, 1976 and Dec. 7, 1976, Ferguson said Friday. The homes were picked out by a statistical chance number selection to eliminate bias in the choice.

Their financial records were then submitted to a full audit to determine the validity of the figures submitted by the nursing homes, he explained.

Ferguson also recommended that the department develop guidelines to monitor expenditures and establish a viable communications system between nursing home providers and the welfare department.

He said findings have been turned over to the Ohio legislature joint select committee on welfare.

Ferguson's office identified 18 of the facilities receiving overpayments, but said the other five homes would not be named until next week.

They are:

Highland View Nursing Home, Villa Convalescent Center, Miami County; Hanover House, Stark County; Suburban Pavilion, Jones Nursing Home, Cuyahoga County; Lutheran Senior City, Bryden Manor, Worthington Nursing Home, Patterson Nursing Home, Resthaven, Franklin County;

Crestview Manor, Fairfield County; Fairborn Nursing Home, Hospitality Home West, Greene County; Deansview Nursing Home, Fayette County; Crestmont Nursing Home, North Condit Convalescent, Delaware County; Fountain Park, Champaign County; Whitehouse Care Center, Highland County.

Over 240 people attended an awards banquet held for the members of the Blue Lancers Baton Drill and Drum Corps November 17 at the American Legion.

Eighty-one trophies, 83 medals, and individual certificates were presented to the 72 members of the corps. Trophies which the entire unit earned during the past season were displayed.

Senior corps member Beth Hindy and drummer John Ford received the Spirit Award, awarded to them on the basis of a vote by fellow members.

Rhonda Glasspoole, Shauna Nungester, Cris Nungester and Melissa Caudill each received a perfect overall attendance trophy.

Five members were recognized for having perfect parade attendance. They were Cindy McFarland, Debbie Lemley, Denise Lester, Diana Pennington and Annetta Ross.

Recognized for attending all practices were Tonya Williams, Lori Haddox, Dawn Hoover, Molly McNaughton and Laura Schleich. All parade participants received awards. The percussion section was also recognized and presented trophies.

The 1975-76 Corps Leaders were recognized and the 1976-77 leaders were announced. They are Beth Hindy, senior leader, Wendy Molly, junior leader, and Rhonda Glasspoole, tiny tots leader. Denise Lester, Laura Schleich, Becky Hindy, Sherrie Bowling and Tonya Williams were named assistant leaders in their respective groups. Suzie Knece is the feature twirler.

Mr. Elijah Honeycutt was recognized for his transportation assistance and Angel Harris and Cindy McFarland were high sales people in a raffle held by the corps.

Co-directors, Mrs. Janet Wright and Mrs. Elaine Lloyd received a wall plaque and a floral arrangement respectively. Each received a digital alarm clock from members and parents.

Officers for the past year were Donna Haddox, president; Carole Bowling, vice-president; Eileen Hindy, secretary; Delores Lemley, treasurer; Ruby Hoover, news reporter; and Ruth Schleich, Corps Seamstress.

Beverly Knece gave the invocation. The directors and banquet committee gave a skit.

During the past year, the corps attended NBTA Competitions and placed first and second in parade corps competition at Stow, Ohio.

The unit received first place awards at the Bainbridge Fall Festival of Leaves, the Piketon Dogwood Festival, Tarlton Firemen's Festival, Laurelville Olde Time Festival, the Denison Bicentennial, and the Amanda Labor Day Festival. Members received first, second and third place at the Jackson Apple Festival, second place at the Chillicothe Halloween Parade and three second places at the Williamsport Dam Days Festival.

The Blue Lancers also participated in the USA Columbus Day Parade, Circleville Pumpkin Show, Adelphi Bologna Festival, the local Memorial Day parade, Ashville Fourth of July Celebration, the Coshocton Canal Days and Canal Fulton Canal Days.

Assassination Panel Probes CIA, Oswald

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two leads actively being pursued by the House panel investigating the assassination of President John F. Kennedy involve the CIA's surveillance of Lee Harvey Oswald in Mexico City.

Committee investigators are attempting to identify a man photographed by the CIA leaving the Soviet Embassy in September 1963 and to determine why the agency mistakenly thought it was Oswald.

The second lead involves a previously reported effort to corroborate a news report that the CIA withheld from the Warren Commission the full transcript of an agency wiretap which monitored Oswald talking by phone to the Soviet Embassy in Mexico City.

Rep. Richardson Preyer, DNC, chairman of the subcommittee investigating the Kennedy slaying, confirmed Thursday that these two leads were under active investigation by Richard A. Sprague, the committee's chief counsel.

A spokesman for Sprague had no comment.

At a public hearing of the full 12-member committee Thursday, Sprague requested a budget of $6.5 million to finance the first full year of the panel's probe into the Kennedy assassination and that of Dr. Martin Luther King. Sprague indicated the investigation would last two years.

Sprague's $6.5-million budget, more than three times greater than the funds spent by the House Judiciary Committee during the 1974 impeachment proceedings against Richard Nixon, was approved by the committee without objection.

Indications were that it would be approved by the full House when Congress convenes in January, though perhaps not in one lump sum.

News For Homemakers

Should boys be given dolls for Christmas? What about a truck for a little girl, or a baseball glove? In a psychologists journal we recently received, such questions were answered by Dr. Brian Sutton-Smith, an internationally known child psychologist and author of numerous textbooks, childrens books and professional articles. Two of his responses are shared here. I will include others in my general newsletter to homemakers, mailed free to anyone requesting it.

Question: Should young girls be encouraged to play with "boys' toys"?

Dr. Sutton-Smith: Young girls have a tendency to do this anyhow. The evidence seems to show that young girls who grew up to be successful professional people had a greater tendency to play with boys and with boys' toys during the ages of 6-12. Apparently this play helped girls to gain confidence when they were young and taught them to be active and successful in their relationships with others.

Judging by what boys and girls do at present, girls generally first identify with mothering through dolls. By contrast, boys identify first with being active through their enormous amounts of vehicle play. Either sex may then adopt the lifestyle of the other, something which few boys do but many girls increasingly do (they begin to identify with the world of activity, trucks, sports, etc.). Boys seldom identify with the world of domesticity.

Question: Should boys be encouraged to play with dolls, and will doing so confuse their sense of masculine identity?

Dr. Sutton-Smith: One of the big changes in toys during the past few decades has been the increase in action dolls for boys. These dolls usually emphasize the stereotyped masculine values of action and courage to allow for doll play by boys without threatening old values too much. Boys can likely gain some new satisfaction in their care for these dolls in dressing and undressing dolls, for example — actions that were denied to boys before but are a reasonable part of learning to be a nurturant father.

On the other hand, boys who wish to play with girls' baby dolls to a marked extent between the ages of 3-6 are probably not developing the usual stereotypes of sex-role identity. Most parents wish their sons to "act like" boys and their daughters to "act like" girls. Thus they would probably not be very happy about a situation in which either sex shows a strong preference at an early age for the stereotypes of the opposite sex.

Put simply, it is probably natural for a boy to play with dolls as long as he also likes playing with trucks or other so-called "boys toys." If a young boy prefers baby-like dolls — and is not interested in playing with trucks and cars — he is probably not going to develop into society's usual stereotype of what a boy should be. Many parents today would be upset by this, and some would not. Although it will be harder for this boy to find his way in a traditional boys' world, in an increasingly tolerant society where sex-role conformity is not as important as it used to be, it is becoming easier for those who do not follow the usual stereotypes to find an accepted adult role for themselves.

Find Many Overpayments To Homes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson has urged the Ohio Department of Welfare to step up field auditing of nursing homes after his office released a report that 23 facilities were overpaid $115,636 by the department over 11 months.

The audit was made in a random selection of nursing home cost reports, filed between Jan. 20, 1976 and Dec. 7, 1976, Ferguson said Friday. The homes were picked out by a statistical chance number selection to eliminate bias in the choice.

Their financial records were then submitted to a full audit to determine the validity of the figures submitted by the nursing homes, he explained.

Ferguson also recommended that the department develop guidelines to monitor expenditures and establish a viable communications system between nursing home providers and the welfare department.

He said findings have been turned over to the Ohio legislature joint select committee on welfare.

Ferguson's office identified 18 of the facilities receiving overpayments, but said the other five homes would not be named until next week.

They are:
Highland View Nursing Home, Villa Convalescent Center, Miami County; Hanover House, Stark County; Suburban Pavilion, Jones Nursing Home, Cuyahoga County; Lutheran Senior City, Bryden Manor, Worthington Nursing Home, Patterson Nursing Home, Resthaven, Franklin County;

Crestview Manor, Fairfield County; Fairbairn Nursing Home, Hospitality Home West, Greene County; Deaneview Nursing Home, Fayette County; Crestmont Nursing Home, North Condit Convalescent, Delaware County; Fountain Park, Champaign County; Whitehouse Care Center, Highland County.

Cabinet Hot Seat

Emphasizing the importance foreign policy matters inevitably will pay in the Carter administration was the selection of a secretary of state nominee among the two first cabinet selections. The designee, Cyrus R. Vance, thus is given the maximum time to acquaint himself with a long list of ongoing foreign policy questions waiting for the new administration when it takes office.

Among the more important of those issues are the energy question, particularly as it relates to foreign oil pricing; further arms control negotiations with the Soviet Union; a reconsideration of the ideal relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union and China; the unsettled Panama Canal question; how to proceed in the Middle East now that the Lebanon civil war crisis appears to have calmed; and, in more general terms, what policies to pursue in regards to the continents of Africa, Europe, Latin America and Asia—particularly the communist states of southeast Asia.

That by no means exhausts the list. The world, it seems, has more unanswered questions involving the U.S. than is usually the case. Many of them will require early decisions, or at least major consultations by the new administration.

Cyrus Vance is no novice to Washington, but the office he will assume in January has a spotlight of public attention focused from a number of directions. If challenge is what the new secretary of state is looking for, he is certain not to be disappointed.

The Silent Crippler

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
NEW YORK — "Hey, John, how did you get the black eye?"
"Aah, I hit my head on a table doing exercises for my arthritis."
"That's tough. You must have a rotten headache."
"Not at all. I split my finger open slicing a round steak for my eye. Made me forget about the head."
"My Lord, now I see it - your finger's badly swollen. It must really hurt."
"Don't feel it. The doctor gave me a tetanus shot and the needle broke in my arm. Pain was so bad I fainted while he was pulling it out."
"Don't tell me you hit your head again falling down."
"No, but I wrenched my ankle somehow. He taped it up immediately."
"You must have hobbled and bobbed - a wrenched ankle on top of a fainting spell."
"I didn't notice. Before I could stand up the doctor gave me a bill that made me so damn mad I smashed a fist on his desk."

"Can't blame you. What did he say?"
"He said if I did dumb things like that, I'd jar my spine and have a really bad attack of arthritis."
"Then what happened?"
"He was right. My arthritis came back."
"What a rotten day you've had."
"Not at all. Do you realize that for nearly two hours I was completely free of my back pain? It's the first time in months."
"Well, gee - congratulations."
"Thanks. Now beat it so I can do my exercises. And careful of those thumbtacks on the floor on your way out."
"Good heavens, why do you have thumbtacks on the floor?"
"Because my wife took out the table I use to hit my head on..."

For people who live in almost constant pain with arthritis, the counterirritant is sometimes the medicine that seems to work best. Ridiculous as the above story seems, it seems plausible to at least some of the more than 50 million Americans who have it - and particularly the 3,500,000 who are disabled by it.

What is so horrendous about arthritis is that those who suffer from it receive little sympathy from the healthier public, because the illness doesn't "show."

In many ways, it is like encroaching deafness.

When you're hard of hearing, people don't feel sorry for you. They're just sort of annoyed with you. They get impatient when you ask them to repeat something, because you didn't hear it. If hard-of-hearing were a disease like pneumonia or measles, there would be sympathy - but it causes no fever, no spots, not even a sneeze. An elderly man once wrote me, "Unfortunately it doesn't make you sick. It just makes people sick of you."

The same can sometimes be said of arthritis. Usually the only outward manifestation of its onset are pained faces and a tendency to complain. Many fine people, after years of suffering, have learned to say "I'm fine," preferring to give up honesty rather than having their friends and relatives give up speaking to them.

Aside from emotional strain and mental anguish, arthritis costs Americans more than $3.5 billion a year in lost wages. Income tax losses to the Federal government because of arthritis add up to $772 million.

Ironically, however, less than $20 million a year is spent in the U.S. on arthritis research... while more than $408 million is wasted each year on worthless arthritis remedies and "cures." This means that for every dollar spent to conquer the disease, more than $20 is spent on phony devices and products to ease its pain.

Under the circumstances, John's counterirritant experience makes sense.

"If you step on a tumb tack, you temporarily forget your aching spinal arthritis," he observes, cynically, "and people rush to your side with clucks of sympathy and interest. They can see your problem, and therefore they can appreciate your pain. Maybe, if you're lucky, your tack wound will even become infected, thus arousing not only family concern but public support."

"Sometimes I feel that a nationwide research campaign dedicated to a 'Thumbtack Infection Cure' would draw more contributions than arthritis. And, my god, think what it would do for private industry. They would put out a billion dollars worth of tacky remedies..."

More Phone Charges Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The phone company, which already charges in some places for local information calls, may soon be asking for the right to bill for long-distance directory assistance.

AT&T Chairman John D. deButts said Bell's subsidiaries probably will seek the right to impose the charges in the near future. He wasn't more specific about the timing.

It could be up to either the Federal Communications Commission or state regulatory agencies to decide if the charges are approved, depending on what form the proposals take.

An FCC official said if the charge were related to long-distance service, it would have to be filed with the federal agency, which regulates interstate rates.

But he said state commissions would have jurisdiction if the phone company proposed to charge for long-distance information after allowing a specified number of directory assistance calls free of charge.

In an interview published Thursday by the Washington Star, deButts said the cost of long-distance directory calls already is reflected in customers' bills. Under the current system, he said, the cost is spread out among all customers regardless of whether they use the service.

A special enzyme, Renin, is the center of a considerable amount of scientific excitement.

Dr. Eve Slater and Dr. Edgar Haber, of the Massachusetts General Hospital, believe that Renin plays a very significant role in the production of high blood pressure.

The doctors recently reported the presence of this substance "in normal human kidney tissues." Scientists at the meetings of the American Heart Association were impressed with the possibilities of the work of Dr. Slater and Dr. Haber.

Their research will be continued at various hospitals and medical centers in the United States. Such contributions may eventually be the answer to a disease which affects more than 20 million Americans and is a responsible factor in causing heart attacks, strokes and kidney failure.

The American Heart Association is to be congratulated for supporting such brilliant scientific research.

A new drug, tiapride, is being tried in Belgium for the rapid relief of symptoms caused by the withdrawal of alcohol.

This is of considerable importance because the unpleasantness of alcohol withdrawal is one of the factors that interferes with the good intent to break way from alcohol addiction.

Dr. Isadore Pelc, of the University Hospital in Brussels, hopes that his extensive research with this drug will soon be recognized and duplicated in America. Then the Federal Drug Administration may release tiapride for public consumption.

Angiography is a widely accepted technique for studying the blood circulation in the brain and around the heart. Using special dyes, the entire vascular system can be outlined.

Now, a dye, fluoresceins, is being used to study the complex divisions of the eye. This system of eye angiography can now outline areas which previously could not be visualized.

Dr. Robert W. Flower, of the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, has developed this technique. It may have invaluable diagnostic potential.

Glenn Urges End To Electoral College

CINCINNATI (AP) — U.S. Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, believes Congress should act now to abolish the Electoral College before there is a "political disaster" caused by a close vote in which the candidate with the fewest popular votes gets elected.

Glenn told a news conference Friday that the electoral college was unfair to the voters and potentially dangerous for the country.

"We came within a hair's breadth of a political disaster for the country," in the just past presidential election, Glenn told a news conference.

Glenn said that the closeness of the vote could have resulted in the re-election of President Ford while President-elect Jimmy Carter would have had the majority of the popular vote.

Glenn said it was the seventh time in this century that a close vote could have resulted in the popular candidate losing.

Glenn said a shift of 5,000 to 7,000 votes in Ohio and Hawaii would have given Ford the election.

"This is not the first time a minority of one per cent has elected the president," said Glenn, adding that had the candidate with least votes been elected by the Electoral College it would have further damaged citizen's confidence in U.S. institutions.

"The Electoral College was fine a hundred years ago when nobody knew the candidates and they voted for electors," Glenn said. "I think many people don't vote because they feel their vote doesn't count."

Glenn said one elector in Alaska represents 7,500 voters while the ratio in Ohio and other large states is one elector for 400,000 people. "It is time we did something about this aspect of it, if we can overcome the objections of the small states, and go to a direct vote of the people," Glenn said.

Glenn, later in the day, met with Wilberforce College President Dr. Charles Taylor to discuss federally-funded plans to set up a National Museum of Afro-American History and Culture at the school near Xenia, Ohio.

Glenn and outgoing U.S. Sen Robert Taft Jr. cosponsored the bill to build the museum at the 120-year-old school, the first black college in the United States.

Glenn noted that Congress voted only about $25,000 for the planning but felt the next current Congress would fund the project next year.

Taylor said the school's 1,100 students are collecting signatures from residents supporting the measure and will deliver them to Glenn's Washington office later.

Taylor called Wilberforce "the end of the Underground Railroad" and said the area populated by the descendants of runaway slaves is "steeped in tradition and history."

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

With the arrival of Christmas I suddenly was hit with the inspiration to write this letter (which needed to be written long before this time). The subject that I wish to bring up is the accessibility to our community by handicapped persons.

My husband is a paraplegic and in the past four years I have awakened to all the difficulties that arise that I never would have noticed normally. I look around our community and see all the new faces being put on our downtown buildings, but the prettiest face I could imagine is a smile on my husband's and other's faces who have to struggle for parking and curbs. Isn't it about time Circleville woke up? We've gone to city merchants and city council, always getting an agreement that the problems exist but we don't see plans for changes. Access to churches, courthouse, post office, police department, hospitals, banks and library is long overdue. The government can help businesses change their entrance. No public restrooms can be found.

Graded ramps at the intersection of Main and Court Streets would help mothers with strollers and wagons, people on crutches as well as those in wheelchairs.

People, wake up! Where is our town's accessible parking handicapped signs? Well, I've said my full. Maybe 1977 can be a more gainful year. Citizens, speak up about this, and those who plan to build new stores, remember this during your construction. The extra ramp will put smiles on your 4-wheeled friends.

Grand Jury Returns 17 True Bills

The September Grand Jury met Friday to return 17 true bills and one no bill.

The Grand Jury will reconvene Dec. 16 to consider cases not included in the session, according to Pickaway County Common Pleas Court Judge William Ammer.

Arraignments have been set by Judge Ammer for 9 a.m. Wednesday, Dec. 22.

True bills were returned against: Tyler L. Burns, breaking and entering and theft of drugs;

Alvin Lee Lanthorn Jr., receiving stolen property and grand theft;

Michael Edward Sparks, receiving stolen property, grand theft, and escape;

William David Moore, three counts of aggravated burglary and three counts of grand theft;

Joe Michael Boggs, breaking and entering and petty theft;

Richard Dennis Collins, breaking and entering and petty theft.

A no bill was returned against Donald E. Eitel, who had been charged with grand theft.

Nineteen witnesses were summoned to the Friday session.

Policemen Involved In High Speed Chase

Circleville Police were led on a high-speed chase outside the city limits early this morning.

Men And Women In Military Service

Dennis Picklesimer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Picklesimer of 6495 Justus Road, Stoutsville, Ohio, enlisted in the U.S. Air Force today, according to Sgt. Marshall Crum, here.

Upon graduation from the Air Force's six weeks basic military training, Dennis will receive training in the Aircraft Maintenance. Dennis is a 1976 graduate of Amanda Clearcreek High School.

Dennis will be earning credits toward a Career Education Certificate through the Community College of the Air Force while attending basic and other Air Force technical training schools.

Timothy A. Justice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Justice, 11510 Hayesville Road, Kingston, has enlisted in the United States Navy. His address is: SR Timothy A. Justice, 281-54-2153, Co. 382, 13th Battalion, RTC Great Lakes, Ill. 60088.

According to the report, Ptl. Alan Hawks and Ptl. Ron Thompson were on routine patrol, heading west on Watt Street in the vicinity of Stella Ave., at 1:09 a.m., when a car passed them going east on Watt Street at a high rate of speed.

The two officers turned around and gave pursuit, heading east out of the city on Lancaster Pike. The report states that outside of the city, the vehicle was clocked at speeds in excess of 110 m.p.h. At Ringgold-Southern Road, the vehicle headed north for approximately one half mile before pulling to the side of the road.

Three male subjects were in the vehicle. The driver was identified as Stephen Sabine, 20, Route 5. Passengers in the car Randy Brooks, 20, 412 E. Main St., and John Radcliff, 19, 611 Elm Ave.

Upon investigating a hit-skip accident on Ruth Ave., police found Sabine's auto to be the one involved. According to the accident report, Sabine struck a fence owned by James Legg, 401 Ruth Ave., and caused damage to approximately 20 feet of the fence. The report states that Sabine then left the scene.

Sabine was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence, eluding a police officer, and leaving the scene of an accident. Brooks and Radcliff were both charged with intoxication.

Santa and the Giant Fighter

By Lucrece Beale

Synopsis: Santa and Billy get the ghost's tears that can turn most giants into pigs. Then Santa leaves Billy at the cave where the moon is hidden.

CHAPTER TEN GOKO THE GIANT

Goko the giant was the bulkiest, hulkiest, heftiest giant in the world. He was larger than three elephants. His legs were huge as tree trunks and his arms as wide as storm water pipes. He was a prodigious, stupendous, monumental colossus of a giant.

Except for his head. It was the size of a very large cantaloupe. And the brains in his head were as mushy as the seeds in the melon.

Goko lived in a towering castle on a sky-touched mountain. His brothers and cousins and nephews lived with him. Compared to Goko they were peewee giants. Goko was their master and they were his slaves.

Goko had a terrific temper. Day and night he thundered through the castle whopping and whacking and thumping and lalloping the other giants. But it was not enough for him to be king of the giants. He wanted to be King of Fairyland and Santa Land and the ruler of all Little Folk everywhere.

He ordered his giants to capture the Fairy Queen. They caught her as she was travelling through the forest one evening on her way to a butterfly ball. They brought her to the castle and Goko asked her to be his bride.

Naturally the Fairy Queen refused. Goko locked her in a chamber. He swore he would marry her anyway on Christmas Day. Then he would be King of the Fairies whether she wished it or not.

The Queen used all her magic but could not free herself. She wept and begged to be set free. Goko only laughed. He bellowed that she should get accustomed to her bonds because she would be his prisoner even after she became his bride.

"You look fierce enough," Goko told the dragon.

The Queen cried, "My magic may have failed but a real live boy will free me and you shall die by the light of the moon!"

Goko threw back his head and roared with laughter. All the same he was worried.

He ordered his slaves to capture the moon. That night the giants went to the edge of the Western Sea. When the moon set they caught it in a net and put it in a box and carried it back to Goko.

The big giant sealed the box so no one could open it. Then he carried it to a mammoth cave three miles beneath the ground. But still he wasn't satisfied. He went to the swamps where dragons were known to have their nests.

He walked through the oozy, squelchy quagmire until he came upon a monstrous dragon rising out of the plashy marsh. The creature was almost as long as Goko was tall. His tail was sharp as a fish knife. His eyes glittered. Smoke drifted from his nostrils.

The giant told him he wanted dragons to guard the moon cave. The monster said, unfortunately, he was the only dragon around. All the others had gone off to live in zoos where the food was good and living conditions reliable.

"You look fierce enough," growled Goko. "You alone must guard the cave."

No one before had told the dragon he was fierce looking. The truth was he would like to have gone to live in a zoo, too, but no zoo wanted him because he had never learned to breathe fire. Furthermore, his tail moved up and down like a puppy dog's instead of back and forth as a proper dragon's should.

The dragon did not like the giant and he did not want to help him. But he was afraid to refuse. Besides, he was very tired of the squishy, squashy bog where he lived. He really would like to have a change.

Goko led the dragon to the cave and showed him the box he must guard. Then the giant returned to his castle and boasted to the Fairy Queen.

"Nothing can harm me now for the moon will never shine again."

Monrovia Garden Club Annual Christmas Party Held At Wardell Party Home

Members of Monrovia Garden Club met Monday evening at the Wardell Party Home for their annual turkey dinner and Christmas Party. The dinner was enjoyed by the 28 members and guests. Mrs. Ann Fulton, Mrs. Herman Porter and Mrs. Clyde Michel were hostesses and conducted several games and contests. Mrs. Norabelle DePugh won the prize for writing the most words out of Merry Christmas. Mrs. Barbara Styer won the prize for guessing nearest to the number of buttons in a jar and Mrs. Juanita Woods won first place in making a pair of earrings.

The decorated gift wrappings were judged by the group in a most unique

Israel's Lutheran Guild Meets

Israel's Lutheran Guild met Wednesday in the home of Margaret Young, Route 1, Amanda.

A bountiful noon carry-in dinner was enjoyed by the guests who were seated at tables containing individual candles and candle holders. The home was completely decorated with Christmas arrangements and lighted candles.

Rita Riencheld gave the lesson entitled, "The Coming Celebrated" and read "My Christmas Miracles."

Sally Kennedy read the scripture lesson from Luke 2:7-20 and John 1:14. Hymns sung were "Joy To The World," "Silent Night," and "Jingle Bells."

Pauline Riencheld, president, conducted the business meeting. Programs for the new year were given to members. A motion was made to prepare a basket for a needy family. The meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer and Missionary Benediction. A gift exchange of home made articles took place by having those present draw matching Christmas symbols.

Those present were Belle Aldenderfer, Mazie Lash, Maud Christy, Stella Meisse, Edith Fosnaugh, Etta Good, Pauline Riencheld, Sally Kennedy, Rita Riencheld, Randa Riencheld, Linda Goble, Helen Barr and Margaret Young.

Ashville Senior Citizens Have Christmas Party

The Ashville Senior Citizens held their annual Christmas party at the Village U.M. Church Thursday, Dec. 9. A turkey dinner was served at noon.

Leona Berger cooked the turkey and made the dressing. She and Virgil Six were the kitchen committee. Lovely table decorations were provided by Addie Lockard. Everyone joined in singing the Doxology for the table prayer.

After the dinner, Sam Dettra, Jerry Abner and Dave Denny, who were dinner guests, showed and explained to the group the winterizing work which is being done for Senior Citizens by PICCA. This project will put insulation in your home and Plex-o-Glas storm windows. This is a Federally funded program to assist in conserving energy, and is done free of charge for people on fixed incomes. If you feel you need this service and don't know if you qualify, a phone call to PICCA at 474-7452 or 474-6881 will get you the answer.

For the main part of the program, the group adjourned to the church auditorium where Mr. Charles Morrison showed slides of old time Ashville and the Ashville area. Everyone present enjoyed them very much and extended hearty thanks to Mr. Morrison for his effort. December birthday people were saluted with the usual song. They were: Clara Shriver, Marian Hinkle, Vera Rife and Grace Streitenberger.

December Meeting Held By Guild 48

Berger Hospital Guild 49 held its December meeting Monday evening at the home of Terry Conley, 381 E. Franklin St. Punch and hors d'oeuvres were served by the hostess, followed with a carry-in buffet. The Christmas theme was used in decorations and favors were red candles. The centerpiece was won by Pat McGinnis. A gift exchange was held at the close of the evening.

The next meeting will be held 7:30 p.m., Jan. 10, in the home of Cheryl Baties, 2005 Araphah Drive. Logan Elm Village.

DeMolay Mothers To Elect Officers

The DeMolay Mothers Club will meet 7:30 p.m. Monday in the dining room of the Masonic Hall.

Members will elect officers and have a Christmas gift exchange.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Needs A Brother, Not A Lover

DEAR ABBY: I am a recently divorced 26-year-old man. I'm a college graduate and have a good job. My problem is a girl named Marcie. She will be 14 next week but she's very mature for her age and looks much older.

Marcie and I hit it off immediately, and it was soon apparent that she wanted to be more than just friends. I tried to ignore her not-too-subtle advances, hoping it would pass, but I must admit I was very much attracted to her. She's very pretty, bright and extremely honest. She told me she has gone all the way with several fellows, but she's not a tramp-she just has a healthy sexdrive. We've done some kissing and heavy petting, but I wouldn't let myself go beyond that because of her age.

I'll be truthful, Abby. It it weren't for what people would say about my dating a 14-year-old girl, I'd date her, not because I know she'd be "easy", but because I do have strong feelings for her.

Is something wrong with me to feel this way about a girl half my age? What should I do?

CONFUSED AND WONDERING
DEAR CONFUSED: Nip this inflammable relationship in the bud. Should you get carried away by this aggressive little sexpot with a "healthy sex drive," you would be contributing to the delinquency of a minor. Marcie desperately needs counseling. Do her a favor and help her get her head together before she gets into serious trouble. She needs a big brother-not a lover.

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing this for our whole family. Our problem is our 30-year-old sister. She is very intelligent, holds a highly respected position, and makes a fantastic salary, but she thinks our bathroom is a library.

She takes magazines, books and newspapers into the bathroom and stays for hours. It's the only bathroom in the house, and besides our parents there are four of us younger kids living at home.

If anyone knocks on the door to use the bathroom, she gets angry.

Please put this in your column. She reads it every day-in the bathroom.

KID SISTER
DEAR SISTER: Your sister may be very intelligent, but she is also very inconsiderate. If she plans to continue living at home and using the family bathroom as a library, she should use some loot from her "fantastic salary" to build a second bathroom.

DEAR ABBY: Two of my friends recently had surgical staples placed in their ears by a doctor to help control their overeating.

Can you give me some information concerning the validity of this procedure? Is it a physical technique or is it psychological, such as doctors giving patients "sugar pills"?

Can these staples be harmful to a person's health?

CURIOS IN TEXAS
DEAR CURIOUS: It's psychological. It has worked for some, but not for all. The only danger (which is slight) would be possible infection from staples. Ask your friends who have them. They should know.

AAUW Literature Group Will Meet

"Sign Of The Four" by Arthur Conan Doyle will be the book discussed by AAUW Literature Study Group during its 8 p.m. Tuesday meeting in the home of Mrs. Richard Sutton, 361 Meadow Lane.

Esther Circle Holds Luncheon

Esther Circle of Community United Methodist Church met Wednesday in the Christmas theme decorated home of Mrs. Lloyd Kittle, 566 Oakland Terrace with 15 members present. Co-hostesses were Vera Downs, Charlotte Cup, and Alice Stout.

The carry-in luncheon was topped off with Charlotte Cup's Beaumont, Kentucky Special Prune Cake and ice-cream.

Mrs. Rex (Virginia) Wood was in charge of the program. She read a Christmas story and prayer, setting the mood for the religious Christmas season.

The Kittle home was festive looking with the many symbols and motifs of Christmas which added to the gift exchange.

The program committee Deborah Barr, Lucille Bosworth and Ellen West prepared and distributed the 1977 program booklet inserts.

Other members present were Eva Heffelfinger, Marion Fischer, Almeda Hill, Irene Jenkins, Nelle Oesterle, Mildred Turner, Fanny Young, and Lucille Scott.

Monrovia Garden Club Annual Christmas Party Held At Wardell Party Home

Members of Monrovia Garden Club met Monday evening at the Wardell Party Home for their annual turkey dinner and Christmas Party. The dinner was enjoyed by the 28 members and guests. Mrs. Ann Fulton, Mrs. Herman Porter and Mrs. Clyde Michel were hostesses and conducted several games and contests. Mrs. Norabelle DePugh won the prize for writing the most words out of Merry Christmas. Mrs. Barbara Styer won the prize for guessing nearest to the number of buttons in a jar and Mrs. Juanita Woods won first place in making a pair of earrings.

The decorated gift wrappings were judged by the group in a most unique

Israel's Lutheran Guild Meets

Israel's Lutheran Guild met Wednesday in the home of Margaret Young, Route 1, Amanda.

A bountiful noon carry-in dinner was enjoyed by the guests who were seated at tables containing individual candles and candle holders. The home was completely decorated with Christmas arrangements and lighted candles.

Rita Riencheld gave the lesson entitled, "The Coming Celebrated" and read "My Christmas Miracles."

Sally Kennedy read the scripture lesson from Luke 2:7-20 and John 1-14. Hymns sung were "Joy To The World," "Silent Night," and "Jingle Bells."

Pauline Riencheld, president, conducted the business meeting. Programs for the new year were given to members. A motion was made to prepare a basket for a needy family. The meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer and Missionary Benediction. A gift exchange of home made articles took place by having those present draw matching Christmas symbols.

Those present were Belle Aldenderfer, Mazie Lash, Maud Christy, Stella Meisse, Edith Fosnaugh, Etta Good, Pauline Riencheld, Sally Kennedy, Rita Riencheld, Randa Riencheld, Linda Goble, Helen Barr and Margaret Young.

Ashville Senior Citizens Have Christmas Party

The Ashville Senior Citizens held their annual Christmas party at the Village U.M. Church Thursday, Dec. 9. A turkey dinner was served at noon.

Leona Berger cooked the turkey and made the dressing. She and Virgil Six were the kitchen committee. Lovely table decorations were provided by Addie Lockard. Everyone joined in singing the Doxology for the table prayer.

After the dinner, Sam Dettra, Jerry Abner and Dave Denny, who were dinner guests, showed and explained to the group the winterizing work which is being done for Senior Citizens by PICCA. This project will put insulation in your home and Plex-o-Glas storm windows. This is a Federally funded program to assist in conserving energy, and is done free of charge for people on fixed incomes. If you feel you need this service and don't know if you qualify, a phone call to PICCA at 474-7452 or 474-6881 will get you the answer.

For the main part of the program, the group adjourned to the church auditorium where Mr. Charles Morrison showed slides of old time Ashville and the Ashville area. Everyone present enjoyed them very much and extended hearty thanks to Mr. Morrison for his effort. December birthday people were saluted with the usual song. They were: Clara Shriver, Marian Hinkle, Vera Rife and Grace Streitenberger.

December Meeting Held By Guild 48

Berger Hospital Guild 49 held its December meeting Monday evening at the home of Terry Conley, 381 E. Franklin St. Punch and hors d'oeuvres were served by the hostess, followed with a carry-in buffet. The Christmas theme was used in decorations and favors were red candles. The centerpiece was won by Pat McGinnis. A gift exchange was held at the close of the evening.

The next meeting will be held 7:30 p.m., Jan. 10, in the home of Cheryl Baties, 2005 Araphaho Drive. Logan Elm Village.

DeMolay Mothers To Elect Officers

The DeMolay Mothers Club will meet 7:30 p.m. Monday in the dining room of the Masonic Hall.

Members will elect officers and have a Christmas gift exchange.

way and Mrs. Mabel Stoer placed first, Mrs. Ruby Smith second, and Mrs. Ruth O'Day and Mrs. Barbara Styer tied for third place.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Needs A Brother, Not A Lover

DEAR ABBY: I am a recently divorced 26-year-old man. I'm a college graduate and have a good job.

My problem is a girl named Marcie. She will be 14 next week but she's very mature for her age and looks much older.

Marcie and I hit it off immediately, and it was soon apparent that she wanted to be more than just friends. I tried to ignore her not-too-subtle advances, hoping it would pass, but I must admit I was very much attracted to her. She's very pretty, bright and extremely honest. She told me she has gone all the way with several fellows, but she's not a tramp-she just has a healthy sexdrive. We've done some kissing and heavy petting, but I wouldn't let myself go beyond that because of her age.

I'll be truthful, Abby. It it weren't for what people would say about my dating a 14-year-old girl, I'd date her, not because I know she'd be "easy", but because I do have strong feelings for her.

Is something wrong with me to feel this way about a girl half my age? What should I do?

CONFUSED AND WONDERING
DEAR ABBY: Nip this inflammable relationship in the bud. Should you get carried away by this aggressive little sexpot with a "healthy sex drive," you would be contributing to the delinquency of a minor. Marcie desperately needs counseling. Do her a favor and help her get her head together before she gets into serious trouble. She needs a big brother-not a lover.

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing this for our whole family. Our problem is our 30-year-old sister. She is very intelligent, holds a highly respected position, and makes a fantastic salary, but she thinks our bathroom is a library.

She takes magazines, books and newspapers into the bathroom and stays for hours. It's the only bathroom in the house, and besides our parents there are four of us younger kids living at home.

If anyone knocks on the door to use the bathroom, she gets angry.

Please put this in your column. She reads it every day-in the bathroom.

KID SISTER
DEAR SISTER: Your sister may be very intelligent, but she is also very inconsiderate. If she plans to continue living at home and using the family bathroom as a library, she should use some loot from her "fantastic salary" to build a second bathroom.

DEAR ABBY: Two of my friends recently had surgical staples placed in their ears by a doctor to help control their overeating.

Can you give me some information concerning the validity of this procedure? Is it a physical technique or is it psychological, such as doctors giving patients "sugar pills"?

Can these staples be harmful to a person's health?

CURIOUS IN TEXAS
DEAR CURIOUS: It's psychological. It has worked for some, but not for all. The only danger (which is slight) would be possible infection from staples. Ask your friends who have them. They should know.

AAUW Literature Group Will Meet

"Sign Of The Four" by Arthur Conan Doyle will be the book discussed by AAUW Literature Study Group during its 8 p.m. Tuesday meeting in the home of Mrs. Richard Sutton, 361 Meadow Lane.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rainy skies lingered in Ohio today as another cold front was forecast to enter the northern part of the state Sunday.

Much colder air will spread into the state Sunday and there will be a few light snow flurries during the day. The below normal temperatures so persistent this month will continue into next week with winter officially about two weeks away.

A weak cold front moved through the state last night and spread some scattered showers into Ohio. Temperatures fell into the 20s and 30s. A few more showers will linger on in the Ohio valley through tonight. Afternoon readings were to climb into the 20s and 30s in the north and the 40s and 50 in the south. It will be much colder tonight in the north with readings in the teens and 20s and the 30s in the south.

Logan Elm Edges Carroll

Logan Elm collected its second basketball victory in the Mid State League and its third in four starts by edging host Bloom Carroll, 61-58, Friday.

It was a team victory for the Braves with Chuck Cave, Jeff Collins, Mark Skinner and Terry Wright all scoring in double figures and a fine defensive effort plus a great clutch shot by Randy Pontius.

These five played most of the way with only Skinner getting some rest when he twisted his ankle slightly in the third quarter of the game. He was relieved by Tony Crist.

The Braves trailed, 14-13, at the end of the first eight minutes of play, but edged ahead 30-28 at halftime. They came back to open the second half by forging to a 14-point edge, 42-30, midway through the third quarter.

However, the Bulldogs' pressure defense created some problems for Logan Elm for the remainder of the game. The score at the end of the third period was 47-20.

With only 30 seconds to play, Carroll edged in front, 58-57. But with 18 seconds on the clock Pontius made the clutch basket that sealed the win when he rebounded a missed shot and put it back through the hoop.

A pair of charity tosses by Skinner with seven seconds remaining gave Logan Elm a little breathing room and Cave pulled down the Bulldogs final missed effort to shut off any chance for the hosts.

"They (Bloom Carroll) have a real good ball club," Logan Elm Coach Butch Kobel said after the game. "I wasn't at all pleased with the way we handled their pressure in the second half, and we didn't shoot well at the foul line."

"But Jeff (Collins), Mark (Skinner) and Chuck (Cave) make a lot of things happen out there and they did it when it counted. And Randy is real consistent, always good on defense good in the clutch on offense. It was just a real good team effort," he concluded.

Cave and Collins paced the scoring for Logan Elm. Both connected on nine of 18 attempts from the field for 18 markers each. In addition, Cave had 12 rebounds to lead both teams.

Skinner made four of 12 attempts from the field and connected on two of three chances at the charity stripe and Wright zipped in four of 11 shots from the floor and two of four at the foul line.

Pontius made two of six field goal tries and was one for three at the foul line. Wright had six rebounds in addition to his 10 points.

For the Bulldogs Ron Wyen was the leading scorer with 16 points while Dave Cotner and Dave Campbell scored 14 each. Cotner had 11 rebounds. Rounding out the scoring for Carroll, Don Matheny tallied eight, Jim Little four and Dan Mandeville two.

From the field the Braves connected

Last Baseball Trades Made

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It'll be like old times when manager Chuck Tanner glances down to his bullpen next season. The new manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates will be able to choose between right-hander Rich Gossage and left-hander Terry Foster.

What the Pirates won't have is Richie Zisk ripping the ball out of the ballpark.

This all came about Friday night at baseball's winter meetings, just three hours before the midnight (PST) interleague trading deadline when the Pirates acquired Gossage and Forster from the Chicago White Sox in exchange for Zisk, a hard-hitting outfielder and Silvio Martinez, a rookie right-handed pitcher.

Tanner knew what he was bargaining for because he had both pitchers when he managed the White Sox from 1972-1975.

"Gossage and Forster will be used as relievers," said Tanner, who managed Oakland last season and was dealt by the A's in November for catcher Manny Sanguillen and $100,000.

In other transactions Friday, the St. Louis Cardinals reacquired third baseman Ken Reitz from the San Francisco Giants for right-handed pitcher Lynn McGlothen and the Cleveland Indians sent right-handed pitcher Jackie Brown to the Montreal Expos for first baseman Andre Thornton.

Cleveland Barons Defeat Capitals, 7-1

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The Washington Capitals were the right prescription for the ailing Cleveland Barons Friday night, but it'll take time to find out if the visitors effected a total cure.

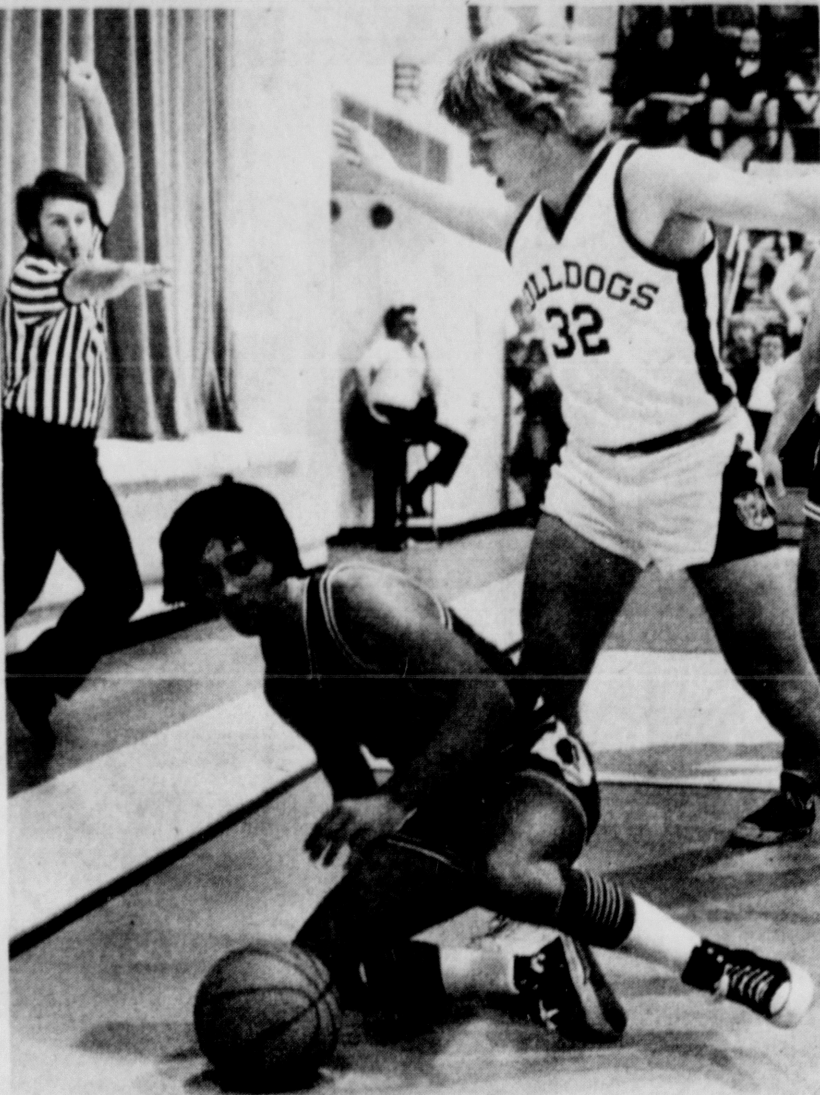

The Barons, suffering through a woeful shortage of goals in recent weeks, ended their eight-game winless string with a 7-1 thumping of the Capitals.

Muskegon Defeats Kalamazoo; Wins 5-2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Yvon Vautour scored a goal and an assist Friday night to pace Muskegon to a 5-2 International Hockey League victory over Kalamazoo Friday — only the Wings second home ice loss all year.

In other IHL action, Flint blasted Fort Wayne, 8-2; while there were a pair of ties — Columbus and Saginaw 6-6; Toledo and Port Huron 7-7.

YOU DID IT — The referee signals a foul on Dave Cotner of Bloom Carroll as Logan Elm's Randy Pontius goes down with the ball. The game was comparatively free of roughness Friday with the Braves having 13 opportunities at the foul line and the Bulldogs seven.

on 28 of 50 attempts, a 56 per cent average. At the foul line they could find the range on only five of 13, a 38.5 percentage. They pulled down a total of 27 rebounds.

The Bulldogs made 27 of 50 shots from the field, a 54 per cent rate and four of seven at the foul line, a 57 per cent rate. They grabbed 20 rebounds.

The reserve game was a real thriller with the little Braves coming from behind in the final quarter to deadlock the game at 37-all at the end of regulation play. The little Braves scored the first five points in the overtime and then hung on to pick up the win.

For the LE junior varsity, Mark Vanover scored 15 points, Bruce Hannigan 12, Jeff Davis six, Dan Hill five, Tom Congrove four and Brad Hunt two.

The next game for the Braves comes next Friday when they host Canal Winchester, a team that has caused them problems ever since Logan Elm entered the Mid State League.

Lack Of Shooting Hurts Mustangs

The Westfall Mustangs suffered a cold shooting hand at Piketon High School Friday night, and suffered a 63-48 defeat.

Mustang cage mentor Mike Eckle stated, "We played a bad first quarter, and we could never come back all the way after that. We had a cold hand and we couldn't find the range. It was also one of those nights where the opposition is hot. We did some things well, but we certainly didn't play up to our potential."

Hot was the right term for the Red Streaks. They hit 27 shots out of a total 47 for a 57 per cent rate of success, which is a pretty good night in anyone's book. The Mustangs hit on 17 buckets in 52 tries for 33 per cent.

The scarlet and gray horses hauled in 37 rebounds over Piketon's 26. The Mustangs committed 20 turnovers, while the Streaks threw it away 15 times.

Piketon put four men in double figures. Larry Cutlip led both sides with 17 points for the Streaks, while teammates Gary Hartsock, Mark Rosey, and Greg Hughes all had 12 tallies.

For the Mustangs, Larry Bilek was high point man with 14. Bruce Starkey closely followed with 12 and right behind him was Eric Schleich with 10. Neil Keller scored four, and Chris Weaver, Larry List, Tom Adams, and Jeff Mowery all chalked up two points.

The loss drops the Mustangs to 1-3 with all contests in the SVC competition. The young team will be out to improve the record next weekend, when they host Bishop Flaget Friday night then travel to Zane Trace Saturday night.

SUMMARY

WESTFALL — Schleich, 3-4-10; Starkey, 4-4-12; Weaver, 1-0-2; Bilek, 4-6-14; List, 1-0-2; Adams, 1-0-2; Keller, 2-0-4; Mowery, 1-0-2. Totals, 17-14-48.

Vikes Drop Close Contest 78-75

The Teays Valley Vikings lost a close Metro contest to the Marysville Monarchs Friday night on the Monarchs' floor.

Scoring for Teays Valley in their 78-75 defeat were Terry Trego with 17 to lead the Vikings' attack. Right behind Trego was Rick Queen with 16. Tim Tosca fired 11 points through the hoop to complete the double digit scoring for the Vikings. Mike Fisher and Ron Little both had six, Charles Morrison notched five, Jeff Voss had eight, and Duane Keller had two.

Griffith lead the Monarchs with a hot 30 points. Nickle had 20 and Johnson had 16 for the victors.

The Viking reserves squeaked out a thrilling victory with a 39-38 decision over Marysville.

In other Metro action, Hamilton Twp. destroyed Dublin 95-49, and Grandview defeated Olenyung 47-42. Franklin Heights notched another win, this time over West Jefferson, 51-41.

Crosby-Friedman Swap Made By Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians and California Angels Friday made a swap of minor leaguers, with infielder Ed Crosby going to the Angels in exchange for outfielder Marty Friedman.

Friedman, 25, hit .320 with 27 doubles, four home runs and 55 runs batted in last season with El Paso of the AA Texas League. He also stole 25 bases in 34 attempts.

Crosby, who came to Cleveland from St. Louis along with Luis Alvarado for Jack Heideman in 1974, was on loan to the Cardinals' AAA American Association affiliate in Tulsa last season before being returned to the Indians and placed on the Toledo roster.

LE Boosters Meet

The Logan Elm Booster Club will meet 7:30 p.m. Monday in the school library. A discussion about the appropriation of funds for the annual budget will take place.

Reserves Win 58-51

The Circleville High School reserve basketball team turned in a winning performance against the Wilmington Hurryin' Hurricane Friday night in the preliminary game to the varsity contest.

Donald Hill paced the Tiger attack with 20 points and Barry Sealock added 11. Rich Elsea fired home 10 to complete the double figure scoring. Pete Harrison chipped in with nine, and Carey Dean and Richard Pfleeger both had four to complete the Circleville scoring.

High point man for the Hurricane was Jeff Sizer with 18. Bob Brecha had 13 for the losing cause.

The reserves are first on the card next Tuesday night at Miami Trace before the varsity contest.

OSU Defeats Loyola, 62-54

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Los Angeles Loyola had just whittled a 15-point Ohio State basketball lead down to 51-43 with less than eight minutes to play.

"They were getting the ball inside. They were shooting some close shots. We decided to make them shoot outside," said Coach Eldon Miller of his switch in Ohio State's defense.

The Buckeyes went to a 2-3 zone down the stretch Friday night and it produced a 62-54 nonconference verdict over the Lions, Ohio State's third victory in four games. Loyola dropped to 4-2.

"Their defense did something different to us than any team we've faced this season," admitted Dave Benaderet, Loyola's coach.

"He contested the ball very well. They're quick and can jump. But they'll get hurt later with that lack of size," he said.

Muhammad Ali Back

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The on-again, off-again retirement of world heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali is off again, the champ says.

Ali, in town Friday to shoot scenes for a movie on his life, said flatly that he's not retiring and that he'll never tell anyone again that's he's quitting.

"When I retire, I will just retire," Ali said in an interview. "I could tell you I was gonna retire, so I will just be quiet."

All conceded that earlier in the week he told another interviewer he was stepping down and that he'd never fight again. But since then he's changed his mind.

"I'm not quitting," he said. "One reason is my wife is suing me, and the settlement with my wife is for $2 million and more."

"Two million dollars cash is a lot of money," he said. "I've got to pay her two million cash dollars. If I didn't have that I could forget about fighting."

Since his latest retirement announcement, Ali said, he has learned of the settlement terms with his wife and "certain things I cannot disclose."

Danny Thompson Loses Fight Against Leukemia

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Major league infielder Danny Thompson's four year battle with leukemia is over.

The disease killed Thompson Friday night at St. Marys Hospital in Rochester. The hospital is affiliated with the world-famous Mayo Clinic.

Thompson was a member of the Texas Rangers at the time of his death. He was 29. He came to Texas June 1, 1976 with pitcher Bert Blyleven in a multiplayer trade with the Minnesota Twins.

Cincinnati Stingers Turn Back Aeros, 6-2

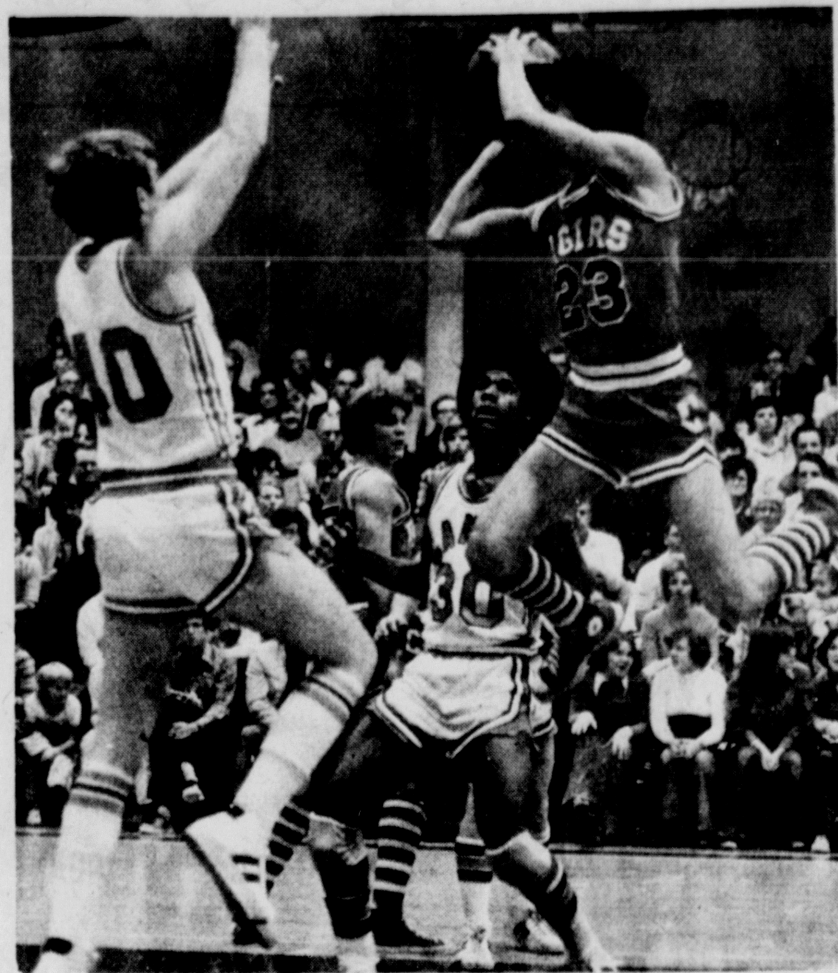

CINCINNATI (AP) — "You gotta stay on the puck. It's the only way to win in this league," said Cincinnati Stingers Coach Terry Slater after his team beat the Houston Aeros 6-2.

Slater said he had his team practicing without sticks since Wednesday's 6-1 loss to San Diego in order to instill aggressiveness.

Tigers Tripped At Wilmington 56-48

FLYING FRANK — Circleville's Frank Merrill (23) leaves the floor at the foul line and soars toward the bucket during second quarter action in Friday night's SCOL clash between the Tigers and the Hurricane. Watching the airborne Tiger fly by are David Nared (30) and Bob Williams (40) for the Hurricane. Across the court, Circleville's Tim Milstead watches Merrill's impression of the "Flying Tigers."

By CRAIG ALLISON
Herald Sports Writer

The old cliché "they never gave up" is a bit over-worked at times, but it was never more true than Friday night at Wilmington High School, as the Tigers took an SCOL cage contest right down to the final minutes before they ran out of steam.

At the start of the fourth quarter, the Hurryin' Hurricane was on top by 10 points, and with-in minutes the Red and Black had cut the gap to six, but they could never make it any closer than that. Key buckets and good defense on the part of the Tigers kept the outcome in the balance during the last stanza, but it became apparent with less than two minutes left that it just wasn't going to be the Tigers' night.

Both teams were about even in the foul-shooting department, with Circleville nailing down 22 tosses in 32 attempts. Wilmington made 14 charity throws in 20 tries.

Rebounding and shooting percentage were the two areas that may have spelled defeat for the Round-towners. The Tigers connected on 13 buckets in 40 attempts, while the Hurricane poured in 21 in 41 shots. Wilmington snared 29 rebounds while Circleville grabbed 19.

Wilmington also mis-played the ball 36 times as compared with the Tigers' 24 turnovers.

David Nared was the artillery for the Hurricane, melting the iron with 26 points. He was the lone double figure man for the Clinton County quintet.

Frank Merrill led the Tigers with 18 points. Also notching a double figure performance was Eric Pontious with 10 markers. Tim Milstead and Toren Bensonhaver had four apiece, while Tom Taylor and Brent Wright shared three point totals. Dave and Rusty Holbrook and Mark Albright all had two points.

Tiger boss Jim Bailey said, "The key to the game was Wilmington's defense. We weren't able to get good shots like we'd like to. Our kids have nothing to be ashamed of. They played as hard as they could have. We feel our defense was good enough that we could have won the game, but we couldn't get good offensive production."

The loss is the first blemish on the Tigers' won-loss record this season. This Tuesday the Red and Black journey to Fayette County to do battle with the Panthers from Miami Trace.

UC Loses Grid Coach

CINCINNATI (AP) — The University of Cincinnati athletic department was rocked by the departure of a second official in a month when football Coach Tony Mason accepted the coaching job at the University of Arizona.

Former National Football League Coach Lou Saban resigned as athletic director in November, 19 days after accepting the post he said he planned to stay at for the rest of his life.

"Let's just say it was because of the atmosphere in Cincinnati, that's all," said Mason, who is expected to make between $32,500 and $35,000 at Arizona. He accepted the post Friday night.

The university reported a $250,000-$300,000 loss on the football program at Cincinnati due to continued low attendance despite the teams 9-2 record which was the best since the mid-1950s.

On Tuesday, the university student senate passed a resolution to abolish the football program and severely curtail athletics at the school.

Hofstra Trips Duquesne In Tournery, 76-70

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Hofstra is hardly a household name—not even in Pittsburgh.

"We had a cab driver and a bus driver on the way into town say, 'Hofstra Who?'" noted Coach Ralph Gaekler.

But the Flying Dutchmen could be known in some households tonight if they beat Southern Illinois in the finals of the Pittsburgh Classic.

The college basketball team with the anonymous image defeated Duquesne 76-70 Friday night to advance to the championship round against the 17th-ranked Salukis, who beat Pitt 72-67.

Here's a quick rundown on the Flying Dutchmen: They're off to a 4-1 start this season after compiling an 18-12 record last year and winning the East Coast Conference playoffs. Defeated by Connecticut 80-78 in overtime in the NCAA regionals, the Flying Dutchmen have returned one of the nation's most fearsome rebounders in John Irving.

Irving's performance complemented a 29-point night by Rich Laurel and preceded another superb show by Mike Glenn of Southern Illinois. The Salukis' extraordinary guard poured in 32 points to help turn back Pitt.

In other tournaments Friday night, sixth-ranked San Francisco defeated No. 15 Tennessee 86-77 and Utah trimmed Seton Hall 95-86 in the Utah Classic at Salt Lake City; Idaho State whipped Georgia Tech 88-72 and Marshall stopped Columbia 79-78 in the opening round of the Marshall Memorial Invitational in Huntington, W. Va.; North Carolina-Charlotte downed Lamar 91-86 and New Mexico State stopped Northern Arizona 82-77 in the Roadrunner Invitational at Las Cruces, N.M., and Niagara defeated Xavier of Ohio 46-44 and Brigham Young trounced Seattle 91-65 in the Cougar Classic in Provo, Utah.

Also, Long Beach State outscored Butler 63-50 and Southern Cal trimmed Grambling 83-75 in the Trojan Classic in Los Angeles; St. Francis, Pa., walloped Georgia State 74-56 and Stetson turned back LIU 57-47 in the Hatter Classic in Deland, Fla.; Texas A&M whipped Houston Baptist 87-72 and Southwestern Louisiana nudged Centenary 91-88 in double overtime in the Bayou Classic in Lafayette, La., and Cal State Fullerton beat South Alabama 89-71 and Pepperdine trimmed Azusa Pacific 83-62 in the Malibu Classic in Los Angeles.

Elsewhere, ninth-ranked Arizona stopped Northwestern 78-64.

Sophomores James Hardy and Winford Boynes each scored 18 points to lead San Francisco past Tennessee. Jeff Judkins scored 29 points, mostly from the outside, and Buster Mathenay muscled in many of his 27 points from underneath the basket as Utah defeated Seton Hall in the second game of the Utah Classic.

Ed Thompson's 25 points powered Idaho State past Georgia Tech. Greg Young sank a short jumper with 14 seconds remaining as Marshall nipped Columbia.

North Carolina-Charlotte defeated Lamar as Cedric Maxwell scored 25 points and pulled down 13 rebounds. Forward Richard Robinson connected for 27 points to lead New Mexico State over Northern Arizona.

Vern Allen hit a jump shot from 15 feet with seven seconds left to give Niagara its victory over Xavier of Ohio. Vance Law scored 26 points to lead Brigham Young over Seattle.

Clarence Ruffen's 16 points paced Long Beach State over Butler in the opener of the Trojan Classic. Southern Cal won the nightcap over Grambling as Greg White scored 28 points.

A 17-point performance by Larry Walker powered St. Francis, Pa., past Georgia State. Mel Daniels scored 18 points and led a second-half charge as Stetson trimmed LIU in the second game of the Hatter Classic.

Dave Goff keyed an 18-point burst in the second half to power Texas A&M over Houston Baptist. A 20-foot jump shot by Pascal Mitchell near the end of the second overtime led Southwestern Louisiana past Centenary.

Herman Harris and Phil Taylor combined for 55 points to help Arizona outclass Northwestern.

Stults President Of Ohio Engineers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Delaware County engineer Fred L. Stults has been elected president of the County Engineers Association of Ohio for 1977.

Also elected were Hancock County engineer Robert L. Morrison, first vice president; Hamilton County engineer Donald C. Schramm, second vice president; Miami County engineer Arthur Haddad, treasurer.

Howard Bovard, a former assistant director in the Ohio Department of Transportation, was named executive secretary.

Three-time Cy Young Award winner Tom Seaver began pitching Little League ball at the age of nine.

Marvin Barnes is on the rebound. The troubled forward of the Detroit Pistons has a new-found interest—basketball.

"All I want to do is play basketball and try to get a ring on my hand," said Barnes after helping the Pistons to a 106-104 National Basketball Association victory over the New York Nets Friday night.

Barnes is considered to be so talented that Pistons' General Manager Oscar Feldman paid $500,000 for him in the American Basketball Association dispersal draft.

But despite his talents, Barnes has been considered a problem. He has left his teams several times, has come down with "mysterious" injuries and most recently, had a one-year suspended sentence for a assault charge revoked when he violated parole by carrying a gun.

In the other NBA games, Phoenix defeated Boston 107-103; Portland trimmed Buffalo 103-102; Washington stopped Indiana 98-88; Chicago defeated New Orleans 92-78; San Antonio ripped Milwaukee 136-120; Los Angeles whipped Houston 109-99 and Seattle topped Golden State 99-93.

Phoenix 107, Celtics 103

Ricky Sobers scored 25 points and backcourt mate Paul Westphal added 21 as Phoenix built a big lead and hung on to beat Boston. The Suns, beaten for the NBA championship in a sixgame playoff with the Celtics last spring, evened their record at 10-10.

Trail Blazers 103, Braves 102

Larry Steele scored 11 points in the fourth quarter as Portland held off a Buffalo rally. Buffalo, playing with a makeshift lineup, never led in the game.

Bulls 98, Pacers 88

Wes Unseld returned to the game after spraining an ankle and scored 11 points in the fourth quarter to lead Washington to a come-from behind victory over Indiana.

Bulls 92, Jazz 78

Chicago continued its mastery of New Orleans with an easy victory behind Norm Van Lier's 17 points. Although the Bulls have won only five of 20 games this season, they have beaten New Orleans twice in the past week.

Spurs 136, Bucks 120

San Antonio, led by 23 points by Larry Kenon and 22 by Mike Gale, opened a 16-point second quarter lead and held off a Milwaukee rally for a runaway victory over the Bucks.

Lakers 109, Rockets 99

Lucius Allen scored 20 points and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar added 18 to propel Los Angeles over Houston. The Lakers led by as much as 29 points midway through the fourth period.

SuperSonics 99, Warriors 93

Fred Brown scored 23 points as Seattle defeated Golden State for the SuperSonics' 29th consecutive home-court victory. Brown was particularly effective in the third quarter when he scored 12 points and helped the Sonics step out to a 75-65 advantage.

Expansion Teams Low

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Call it a tale of two cities.

Here is Seattle, a rainy, overcast, often-gloomy community whose weather doesn't seem to match the Seahawks.

And there is Tampa, whose bright sun never seems to shine on the Buccaneers.

The first season ends Sunday for these two babies of the National Football League. The Seahawks have a shot at matching five other expansion teams—Minnesota, Atlanta, New Orleans, Cincinnati and Miami—which ended their first seasons with 3-11 records. Seattle is 2-11 heading into Philadelphia.

The Bucs have a chance to achieve a feat unmatched in the history of the league. If they lose to New England, they'll have staggered through a 14-game season without so much as a tie to show for it. The worst previous records were 0-11 by the 1942 Detroit Lions and 0-11-1 by the 1960 expansion Dallas Cowboys.

In Sunday's other games, it's St. Louis at the New York Giants and Washington at Dallas with the Cards and Redskins fighting for the National Conference wild card, Cleveland at Kansas City, Cincinnati at the New York Jets, Green Bay at Atlanta, Buffalo at Baltimore, Denver at Chicago, San Francisco at New Orleans and San Diego at Oakland.

Today, Pittsburgh is at Houston with a chance to win the American Conference Central title, Minnesota visits Miami and, tonight Los Angeles is at Detroit.

Larry Steele scored 11 points in the fourth quarter as Portland held off a Buffalo rally. Buffalo, playing with a makeshift lineup, never led in the game.

Bullets 98, Pacers 88

Wes Unseld returned to the game after spraining an ankle and scored 11 points in the fourth quarter to lead Washington to a come-from behind victory over Indiana.

Bulls 92, Jazz 78

Chicago continued its mastery of New Orleans with an easy victory behind Norm Van Lier's 17 points. Although the Bulls have won only five of 20 games this season, they have beaten New Orleans twice in the past week.

Spurs 136, Bucks 120

San Antonio, led by 23 points by Larry Kenon and 22 by Mike Gale, opened a 16-point second quarter lead and held off a Milwaukee rally for a runaway victory over the Bucks.

Lakers 109, Rockets 99

Lucius Allen scored 20 points and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar added 18 to propel Los Angeles over Houston. The Lakers led by as much as 29 points midway through the fourth period.

SuperSonics 99, Warriors 93

Fred Brown scored 23 points as Seattle defeated Golden State for the SuperSonics' 29th consecutive home-court victory. Brown was particularly effective in the third quarter when he scored 12 points and helped the Sonics step out to a 75-65 advantage.

Expansion Teams Low

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Call it a tale of two cities.

Here is Seattle, a rainy, overcast, often-gloomy community whose weather doesn't seem to match the Seahawks.

And there is Tampa, whose bright sun never seems to shine on the Buccaneers.

The first season ends Sunday for these two babies of the National Football League. The Seahawks have a shot at matching five other expansion teams—Minnesota, Atlanta, New Orleans, Cincinnati and Miami—which ended their first seasons with 3-11 records. Seattle is 2-11 heading into Philadelphia.

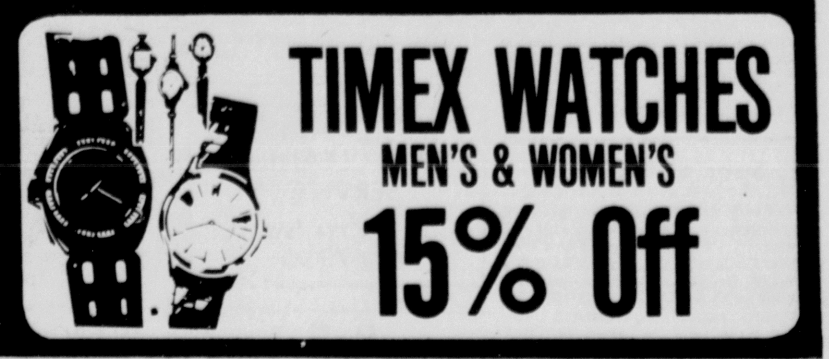

The Bucs have a chance to achieve a feat unmatched in the history of the league. If they lose to New England, they'll have staggered through a 14-game season without so much as a tie to show for it. The worst previous records were 0-11 by the 1942 Detroit Lions and 0-11-1 by the 1960 expansion Dallas Cowboys.

In Sunday's other games, it's St. Louis at the New York Giants and Washington at Dallas with the Cards and Redskins fighting for the National Conference wild card, Cleveland at Kansas City, Cincinnati at the New York Jets, Green Bay at Atlanta, Buffalo at Baltimore, Denver at Chicago, San Francisco at New Orleans and San Diego at Oakland.

Today, Pittsburgh is at Houston with a chance to win the American Conference Central title, Minnesota visits Miami and, tonight Los Angeles is at Detroit.

Intruders Escape Extensive Dragnet

Would-be burglars, who broke into the garage of a home and tried to force open a back door while the owner was telephoning the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department, escaped an extensive dragnet and are still being sought.

Pickaway County Deputies, troopers from the Ohio State Highway Patrol, and units from the South Bloomfield

Police Department attempted to seal off the area around Terry L. Shaeffer's 16720 Commercial Point Road home after the 10:27 p.m. break-in attempt.

While several suspects were questioned, none could be positively identified by Mr. and Mrs. Shaeffer.

According to the report of Deputy Sheriff Jim Dixon, the Shaeffers were awakened by the sounds of a car pulling into the driveway of their rural home.

The driver of the car apparently knocked on their door and pounded on a window beside the front door before returning to the vehicle to turn it around in the driveway with the front end facing towards the Commercial Point Road.

After the car was positioned, the passenger apparently kicked a hole in the lower panel of a door leading into the garage and reached in to unlock the door.

While Shaeffer was calling Deputies, the man attempted to force his way into the home through the garage. However, Shaeffer yelled and frightened him away.

Tire marks in the driveway indicate the burglars may have driven south on the Commercial Point Road.

Deputies are investigating the possibility that the two men may have stolen a Teays Valley School District bus and abandoned it on the parking lot of an elementary school in Columbus.

Both incidents occurred in the same general area.

The 1973 International bus, valued at $10,000 was taken from the driveway of a home owned by Edward Kuhlwein, 5871 Route 762, Ashville. Kuhlwein is a bus driver for the district.

According to the report of Deputy Nick Franklin, Mrs. Kuhlwein was awakened by a disturbance about 3:30 a.m. Saturday, but could not locate anything suspicious.

Officer Cobb of the Columbus Police Department recovered the bus 5:45 a.m. Saturday in the parking lot of the Pinecrest Elementary School on Astor Ave. in Columbus.

The bus was apparently damaged by the thieves as they made their escape from the Kuhlwein home.

Tire tracks indicate the bus ran over the lawn, knocked down a small tree, and sideswiped a mailbox on their property.

James Link Brown, 6341 Perrill Road, Ashville, told Deputy J. Phillip Brown that thieves took 15 young hogs from his lot within the last three weeks.

The hogs, Hampshires and Yorkshires, weigh an average of 35 pounds each and are valued at $200.

Slate Conference On Utility Rates

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Labor groups, the League of Women Voters, sociologists, economists and others have been invited to a conference here Dec. 16 to draft a proposal for easing the utility rate burden of elderly and needy persons.

The conference is being sponsored by the Ohio Electric Utility Institute, which represents all electric companies in the state.

Institute President John R. White announced the conference Friday during a meeting with newsmen in Washington.

White admitted that the idea is an off-shoot from one of four initiatives on the state ballot in November that the utility companies and their allies successfully opposed.

White told reporters that the campaign to defeat the initiatives—which cost about $1.1 million—was an eye-opener for the utility companies. It made them realize the intensity of feeling about the rate structure, he said.

White said utility representatives intend to sit down with participants

“and see if we can develop a program that we can present to our General Assembly, something that will be of some real help to our needy,” White said.

The initiative on electric and gas rates that voters rejected would have amended the state constitution to establish a “life line” pricing system.

The first 400 kilowatt hours generated monthly for each poor household would have been offered at a very low rate. The money the utility companies would have lost under this arrangement would have been recovered by charging other customers more.

“We knew that however well-intentioned this plan was, it would miss the mark,” White said.

He estimated that about half the poor utility consumers are not small users. One reason is that many live in housing units where their utility bill is included in their rent.

“Many elderly people are not needy. Many of them have incomes that allow them to live rather comfortably,” White added.

BURNS TO REMAIN — At his press conference in Plains, Ga., President-elect Jimmy Carter said that he expects Arthur Burns, above, to continue as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

Deaths

MRS. CLARA FULLER

Mrs. Clara C. Fuller, 88, 347 E. Main St., died 7:30 p.m. Friday at Gospel Light Nursing Home, Kingston.

Cincy Area Raids Net Heroin, Guns

CINCINNATI (AP) — Federal agents conducted raids in the Greater Cincinnati area this week and netted a large amount of heroin, jewelry, cameras and guns.

Thomas W. Kitchens, special agent in charge of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) office here, was unable to put a definite value on the heroin, which weighs about four pounds.

“At this time there’s no way we can put an accurate value on it, because the heroin has not been tested,” Kitchens said. “However, from the past experiences of some of the agents involved, the heroin is expected to be 30 to 35 per cent pure.”

“If this is the case, it is estimated that the street sale would be $2 million.”

An inventory from the search warrants, from raids carried out earlier in the week, was returned Friday to U.S. Magistrate J. Vincent Aug Jr.

The warrants noted that agents believed they would find narcotics and dangerous drugs subject to the Controlled Substances Act and stolen property transported in interstate commerce.

Thirty-seven search warrants had been approved by U.S. District Judge Timothy Hogan, although some of the warrants were duplicated in order for searches to be made of a person's home, business and automobile.

Agents from the FBI, the Federal Enforcement Administration, the local Regional Enforcement Narcotics Unit and the Middletown Police Department Wednesday hit 11 homes and three businesses.

An additional three search warrants were issued Friday and the FBI described the investigation as “ongoing.”

The investigation culminated a probe that began almost a year ago, according to Robert Steinberg, U.S. attorney in Dayton, who is heading the coordinated effort.

Steinberg said violation of two federal racketeering laws are among the federal charges that may result in connection with evidence seized in searches by the five law enforcement agencies.

Steinberg declined to say if or when he might take the results of the investigation to a federal grand jury.

Record Wheat Crop Noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Final production figures for the year show that farmers produced a record wheat crop of nearly 2.15 billion bushels in 1976, edging the previous record set in 1975 by about 20.8 million bushels.

The Agriculture Department said Friday that Dec. 1 surveys showed the 1976 wheat crop also was about 12.6 million more bushels than had been estimated in November.

This means farmers can expect still further downward pressure on wheat prices as reserve stocks increase. By next June 1, USDA expects the wheat reserve to be around 948 million bushels, the most in five years.

It also means there will be immediate pressure on the incoming Carter administration and Congress to do something to raise grain prices either through higher government price supports or by establishing some kind of reserve to take some of the excess off the market.

Intruders Escape Extensive Dragnet

Would-be burglars, who broke into the garage of a home and tried to force open a back door while the owner was telephoning the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department, escaped an extensive dragnet and are still being sought.

Pickaway County Deputies, troopers from the Ohio State Highway Patrol, and units from the South Bloomfield

Police Department attempted to seal off the area around Terry L. Shaeffer's 16720 Commercial Point Road Home after the 10:27 p.m. break-in attempt.

While several suspects were questioned, none could be positively identified by Mr. and Mrs. Shaeffer.

According to the report of Deputy Sheriff Jim Dixon, the Shaeffers were awakened by the sounds of a car pulling into the driveway of their rural home.

The driver of the car apparently knocked on their door and pounded on a window before the front door before returning to the vehicle to turn it around in the driveway with the front end facing towards the Commercial Point Road.

After the car was positioned, the passenger apparently kicked a hole in the lower panel of a door leading into the garage and reached in to unlock the door.

While Shaeffer was calling Deputies, the man attempted to force his way into the home through the garage. However, Shaeffer yelled and frightened him away.

Tire marks in the driveway indicate the burglars may have driven south on the Commercial Point Road.

Deputies are investigating the possibility that the two men may have stolen a Teays Valley School District bus and abandoned it on the parking lot of an elementary school in Columbus.

Both incidents occurred in the same general area.

The 1973 International bus, valued at $10,000 was taken from the driveway of a home owned by Edward Kuhlwein, 5871 Route 762, Ashville. Kuhlwein is a bus driver for the district.

According to the report of Deputy Nick Franklin, Mrs. Kuhlwein was awakened by a disturbance about 3:30 a.m. Saturday, but could not locate anything suspicious.

Officer Cobb of the Columbus Police Department recovered the bus 5:45 a.m. Saturday in the parking lot of the Pinecrest Elementary School on Astor Ave. in Columbus.

The bus was apparently damaged by the thieves as they made their escape from the Kuhlwein home.

Tire tracks indicate the bus ran over the lawn, knocked down a small tree, and sideswiped a mailbox on their property.

James Link Brown, 6341 Perrill Road, Ashville, told Deputy J. Phillip Brown that thieves took 15 young hogs from his lot within the last three weeks.

The hogs, Hampshires and Yorkshires, weigh an average of 35 pounds each and are valued at $200.

Slate Conference On Utility Rates

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Labor groups, the League of Women Voters, sociologists, economists and others have been invited to a conference here Dec. 16 to draft a proposal for easing the utility rate burden of elderly and needy persons.

The conference is being sponsored by the Ohio Electric Utility Institute, which represents all electric companies in the state.

Institute President John R. White announced the conference Friday during a meeting with newsmen in Washington.

White admitted that the idea is an off-shoot from one of four initiatives on the state ballot in November that the utility companies and their allies successfully opposed.

White told reporters that the campaign to defeat the initiatives—which cost about $1.1 million—was an eye-opener for the utility companies. It made them realize the intensity of feeling about the rate structure, he said.

White said utility representatives intend to sit down with participants

"and see if we can develop a program that we can present to our General Assembly, something that will be of some real help to our needy," White said.

The initiative on electric and gas rates that voters rejected would have amended the state constitution to establish a "life line" pricing system.

The first 400 kilowatt hours generated monthly for each poor household would have been offered at a very low rate. The money the utility companies would have lost under this arrangement would have been recovered by charging other customers more.

"We knew that however well-intentioned this plan was, it would miss the mark," White said.

He estimated that about half the poor utility consumers are not small users. One reason is that many live in housing units where their utility bill is included in their rent.

"Many elderly people are not needy. Many of them have incomes that allow them to live rather comfortably," White added.

BURNS TO REMAIN — At his press conference in Plains, Ga., President-elect Jimmy Carter said that he expects Arthur Burns, above, to continue as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.
